KING GEORGE APPROVES RECONSTRUCTION OF BRITISH CABINET

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The decision of Premier Asquith, on the advice of the war secretary, David Lloyd George, which is supported by other members of the ministry, to reconstruct the cabinet, is believed to have saved the coalition government again and ensured more vigorous prosecution of the war. There are some details yet to be arranged, but newspapers which have been the most severe critics of the government's alleged dilatory attitude, express the conviction that the premier will be able to announce before many hours an agreement with his colleagues on the vital question concerning the war council, the formation and size of which led to the crisis.

Whether the council will be composed of three, four or five members is still a matter of discussion, while its powers also are the subject of negotiations. Mr. Lloyd George and his adherents desire the smallest possible council, with power to conduct the war independently of the cabinet.

Monday, which usually is a quiet day in the house of commons, promises interesting development in anticipation of which the members returned to town at early hour.

Premier Asquith stated that the reconstruction of the government involved no departure in any shape or form of the policy pursued since the beginning of the war.

He did not deny that the resignation of all the ministers were in his hands.

Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons this afternoon that King George had approved of a reconstruction of the government. Mr. Asquith suggested that after today's business had been concluded the house adjourn until Thursday.

LLOYD GEORGE MENTIONED

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Premier Asquith has decided to advise the king to consent to the reconstruction of the government. This was officially announced last night.

The report is general that Lloyd George resigned his position as war minister and that his resignation forced a reconstruction of the ministry.

It is generally expected that Lloyd George will be premier in the new cabinet, or that if, as suggested in many quarters, a "war council" is appointed to have supreme authority during the period of the war, he will be head of that body. Sir Edward Carson is thought likely to be one of the big men in the new governing body.

Premier Asquith left town Saturday but returned yesterday morning and throughout the day there were consultations and meetings of party leaders at the premier's residence.

Mr. Lloyd George had a long consultation with the premier yesterday afternoon. Other visitors were A. Bonar Law, secretary for the colonies, and the Marquess of Crewe, lord president of the council.

Perhaps the most significant incident was that Sir Edward Carson and Mr. Law appeared together and addressed a morning meeting of the unionist committee, while the Earl of Derby, under-secretary for war, had a long interview with Mr. Lloyd George.

LOST HIS HORN

John Donlan who claims Linen, N. H., as his residence, paid a visit to this city Friday night and while traveling along the great white way in Middlesex street ran across one James Brennan who immediately picked up an acquaintance and started to show John the sights, the principal attractions being saloons. When the eleven o'clock bell sounded Brennan agreed to act as host and took Donlan to his room. When Donlan awoke in the morning he found that his roll of about $50 was missing and Brennan was also absent. Later in the morning the pair met in Middlesex street and Donlan accused Brennan of stealing the money and the latter denied the allegation, the result being that Donlan gave Brennan a push through a store window. In court this morning Donlan said that $11.25 had been found on Brennan's coat when arrested and he was willing to part with $5 of that amount in order to settle for the window which was smashed. On agreeing to get out of the city within 24 hours he was given a suspended sentence of two months in jail. Brennan was found guilty of drunkenness and larceny and sentenced to three months in jail on each complaint.

SCROFULA AND ALL HUMORS GIVE WAY

There are many things learned from experience and observation that the older generation should impress upon the younger. Among them is the fact that scrofula and other humors are most successfully treated with Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine is a peculiar combination of remarkably effective blood-purifying and health-giving roots, barks and herbs, and has been tested for forty years. Get it today.

BOYS' BAND MADE BIG HIT AT CITY HALL

The pleasantest feature of life at city hall today was undoubtedly the visit of the California Boys' Band, which paraded to city hall and serenaded all who work in the various departments. The visit was in accordance with the custom of the boys to call upon the mayor and members of the city government of all cities they touch in their tour. The 40 boys caused no little excitement as they marched through the streets playing patriotic airs and when the strains of "Hail Columbia" rang out in the reception room, there was a general exodus from the various offices in the municipal building, and in a short time the boys had a large audience. Brief addresses were made by Major Sidney Plexotto, of the California National Guard, who has general charge of the boys. Mayor James E. O'Donnell and Superintendent Hugh J. Molloy of the school department.

Major Plexotto explained that the object of the visit is first of all educational. The boys come from the Columbia Park Boys' club of San Francisco, which won a prize of $200 at the Panama exposition for their playing in the band and for their skill in athletics. They are now visiting the country until he comes across Officer Leavenworth to whom he told his story.

Leavenworth, the complainant in the case, testified that on the afternoon of November 4th he was passing through Little Canada when Arnaud approached him and holding what appeared to be a $1 bill asked him if he could change it. Arnaud gave him the change and in taking the supposed bill found that it was about one-third of a bill. He immediately objected and wanted his money back, whereupon Arnaud struck him, knocking him to the ground and while lying prone he said Arnaud kicked him in the side of the head. Saturday night in saw Mulholland and Arnaud and followed present eminent churchmen from Lowell and elsewhere and hundreds of men prominent in the social, industrial and public life of the city. Many non-Catholics were present and all who filled the great church to the doors were thrilled by the gorgeous solemnity and beauty of the Catholic ritual.

That there was something more than ordinary in the service was brought home to the hundreds who streamed into the church for an hour before the beginning of the formal service. The altar was a mass of cut flowers, palms and lights and within the sanctuary to the left was the throne, draped in red, which always denotes the presence of a prince of the Catholic church. The side altars were also gay with flowers and over the main altar was set in lights the motto of the Oblate order, "He Sent Me to Evangelize the Poor."

The musical program was unusually the middle and eastern states, keeping theatrical engagements, but at the same time visiting the leading industrial and educational centers in the cities they touch. The terms of the contract call for special care in housing and boarding the boys, and they are constantly under the supervision of Major Plexotto. Practically all of the boys will return to school as soon as this tour is over. At the present time they are on a leave of absence for one year. Manager Pickett of the B. F. Keith theatre was present at city hall and stated that the band is not paid in proportion to the work of the individuals, but that the members pay their own way, the money received going part way in the payment of expenses.

When the boys filed into the reception room they ranged themselves in front of the mayor's office. His Honor came out immediately and in a brief but appropriate speech welcomed them to Lowell. He then gave them permission to play in the building and they gave a fine melody of national airs, beginning with "Hail Columbia" and ending with the "Star Spangled Banner."

Superintendent Molley congratulated the boys on the educational opportunity they are employing and reiterated the statement of the mayor as to their bright appearance. He invited them to visit the schools of the city, and Major Plexotto said that they are going to visit the Textile school, the State Normal school and several of the large manufacturing plants of the city. When the boys got ready to march out they were applauded heartily, and they played on their return trip in a way that indicated their satisfaction with Lowell's official welcome. The California Boys' band will be seen and heard all week at the B. F. Keith's theatre, where, besides instrumental selections, they will give vocal numbers and exhibitions of drills, acrobatics and talk.

ATTACHMENT FILED

An attachment for $800 was filed in the local registry of deeds against William J. Robbin in behalf of Joseph St. John, both of Lowell. The action is to contract. Thomas G. Robbin represents the plaintiff.

It was stated this morning that the three increases were unsolicited and were given despite the high cost of raw material. The last increase granted will bring the yearly payroll of the seven above mentioned corporations to about $12,000,000 or a net increase of about $4,000,000.

CONGRESS RECONVENES CROWDED PROGRAM OF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Congress reconvened promptly at noon today for the short session which will mark the closing of President Wilson's first term.

With a crowded program of legislation foremost in which is the president's plan for railroad legislation senators and representatives settled down to work as Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall brought down the gavels.

Tuesday's opening was marked by the usual flood of bills and resolutions, many of which are expected to die in committee with the congress itself on March 4.

The energies of the administration leaders were at once concentrated on the prospect of the big supply bills necessary for conduct of the government and upon the limited program of the general legislation.

Speaker Clark declared the next house, on the basis of the last election, would show 216 Democrats. He conceded 213 to the Republicans.

"We have the control of the house without any doubt," he said.

Led by Vice President Marshall, many senators and representatives called at the White House to pay their respects to President Wilson, but he was out.

CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Senator Owen, democrat of Oklahoma, who led the fight for a new corrupt practices act, will introduce a joint resolution tomorrow for an inquiry into expenditures of all political parties in the last national campaign.

The resolution will provide for an immunity bath for men summoned to testify and heavy penalties for perjury," he said.

HILLS FOR FOOD EMBARGO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Four bills designed to touch the high cost of food were introduced today by Representative Fitzgerald of New York. Two propose a food embargo. One would regulate transportation of cold storage foods and another would regulate the admission of farm products and manufactured foodstuffs to the parcel post and reduce the rates on food.

JURY REPORTS $3500 VERDICT FOR INJURY

BIG INFUX OF MILL HELP

The vicinity of the Middlesex street station was "stormed" with foreigners on their way from New York to mills in this section of Massachusetts and New Hampshire between 8 and 10 o'clock this forenoon. In the party, which consisted of many nationalities, were many women and young girls who are starting out to make their own living in this country.

Dressed in the costumes of their respective countries, the group attracted much attention during the stop in this city. Many of the men wore turbans and carried their personal belongings in small bags attached to sticks. The women wore dresses of many colors and carried food and clothing in small cloth bags.

Few in the party were able to speak English. They were going to mill cities, some to Lawrence, some to Nashua, N. H., and others to Haymarket N. H., where they expected work. In most cases relatives or friends who have been working in the mills of this country for years were waiting for the immigrants. Some of the party came to this country on money sent to them by brothers or sisters who work and have been fortunate enough to accumulate sufficient money to pay their fares. All seemed to have promises of employment. The party arrived in this city on the New York train and remained here until connections were made for other cities.

The trial of the suit of James Regis of Lowell vs. Antonio Santakots, also of Lowell, was continued this morning. The suit is brought as a result, it is alleged, of the defendant converting the equipment and machinery of a tonic factory in Market st. to his own use. The property involved is said to be worth about $1500. Several witnesses testified in the case today. Edward J. Tierney for the plaintiff and Bennett Silverblatt for the defense.

JURY IMPANNELED

Just prior to the resumption of the aforementioned case a jury was impaneled to hear the suit of Mrs. Vida S. Walker, administratrix of the estate of Benjamin Hirst vs. the Daniel Gage Ice company of this city. The ad damnum is $10,000. Trull & Wier appear for the plaintiff and Albert Sawyer for the defense.

Mrs. Walker is the daughter of Benjamin Hirst, who died nearly six years ago following an accident. In this action the plaintiff alleges that death was due to the injuries sustained in the accident involving one of the Gage company's ice houses. Mr. Hirst, who had retired from business, was walking along Aiken street in the summer of 1910 when he was injured by the ice wagon. Mr. Wier in opening said that the plaintiff contended that Mr. Hirst was struck and knocked down by the pole of the wagon and then run over. He passed away about six months afterward.

The jury was sent to take a view of Aiken street, near Perkins.

BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

Over 300 tickets for the "America First" banquet of the Lowell board of trade, which will be held at the Kastin on the evening of Dec. 7, have been sold for by members of the organization and about 300 more tickets are still on hand at the office of the board. The date for the issuing of tickets will expire tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock and under no consideration will tickets be given out after that time.

One of the local mill agents stated this morning that the increase will affect all employees of the Lawrence Mfg. Co., Tremont & Suffolk, Hamilton Mfg. Co., Merrimack Mfg., Boott mill, Massachusetts mills and Appleton Co. and that although some of the operatives will receive a little more than 10 per cent, none will get below that amount.

This increase is the third given this year, the first being last January, when the operatives received a 10 per cent. increase; the second in April, when a 10 per cent. increase was given and the increase which became operative today.

It was announced this morning that the three increases were unsolicited and were given despite the high cost of raw material. The last increase granted will bring the yearly payroll of the seven above mentioned corporations to about $12,000,000 or a net increase of about $4,000,000.

elaborate, the choir having been augmented for the occasion under the direction of Joseph P. Courtney, with Mrs. Hugh Walker at the organ. A great part of the mass was sung by a male quartet, but at intervals the full choir sang some of the fervent hymns of Cardinal O'Connell. When during the service the full lighting system was utilized and the solemn music swelled overhead, the church presented a scene of religious exaltation that cannot easily be forgotten.

The sermon of the occasion was preached by Rev. P. E. Donnelly, O.M.I., of London, England, who in a brief but eloquent discourse touched on the marvelous achievements of the Oblate order and its growth through the last century.

Long before 11 a.m. the church was filled with people, and the organist, Mr. Courtney, had to play his instrument from a distance of 15 feet to make himself heard over the voices of the congregation.

General Francisco Murguia, the Carranza commander who has been moving slowly northward from Torreón, was also reported to have entered the city today after having defeated the Villa column 30 miles south of Chihuahua City.

An automobile owned by Clement Hartman of this city was burned near Worcester Saturday. Mr. Hartman was on his way to that city to transact business when the machine caught fire and was destroyed before aid could be summoned.

While no broken legs or other injuries were reported, the Lowell Human Society received many calls this morning relative to horses falling on streets, especially where there is smooth paving. The light rain made the travelling very slippery.

Whether or not Billy Sunday will come to Lowell has not yet been definitely learned by William C. McNamara, Jr., who went to Boston Saturday to confer with a Sunday representative. Mr. Sunday is still unable to state definitely his plans.

Who knows the whereabouts of Samuel Volkoff, who up to three weeks was employed at the Waterhead mills in this city? The man's father is ill at the Jewish hospital at Brooklyn, N. Y., and the police have been asked to track and locate Samuel.

Michael J. Foley, who fell from a stag at the Merrimack Mfg. Co. last week, died of his injuries at the Lowell hospital Saturday evening. The body was removed to the home, 4 East Burnside avenue. Deceased is survived by one son, Patrick J.; two daughters, Frances and Catherine; his mother, five brothers and two sisters.

A portion of the fire department was called to 213 Cheever street shortly after noon today by an alarm from box 135 for a slight blaze in a pillow in a child's crib. The burning pillow was thrown through a window and the fire in the other bed clothing was extinguished before any material damage was done. The building is owned by Joseph Thibault.

A very pleasant affair took place Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Nelson, 15 Hudson street, the occasion being the 35th birthday of Mrs. Nelson, who was made the recipient of many beautiful gifts. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. Sarah Gentle. A fine musical program was carried out, after which refreshments were served.

Thieves entered the variety store of J. E. Hatch, 520 Gorham street, corner of Carter street, early yesterday morning, access being gained by a window on the Carter street side of the store which was broken enough to allow the person to slip his hand through and unlock the window. Property to the value of about $50 was taken. This is the second break that has been made in this store within six months.

crowded to capacity, recalling some of the mission congregations of the parish, and people stood in the aisles and at the back of the church. A few minutes before the opening of the services Cardinal O'Connell walked from the parochial residence, accompanied by an escort of the O.M.I. cadets.

Cross Bearer Thomas Higgins, acolytes, clergymen from every parish of the city, and attendants and his gentleman in waiting, William J. Dooley, in the rich regalia of his office. As the procession passed into the church the choir of 80 voices burst into the ringing processional, "The Cross and the Flag," and the cardinal with his escort passed up the main aisle between lines of O.M.I. cadets standing to rigid attention. The touches of color made by the robes of Bishop da Silva, Monsignor O'Brien and the vivid scarlet of the cardinal blended beautifully with the snowy surplices and the black of the attendant priests. The congregation stood until His Eminence had taken his place in the sanctuary.

The officers of the mass were as follows: Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O.M.I., celebrant, with Rev. J. H. Roquette, O.M.I., pastor of St. Joseph's, deacon, and Rev. John F. Flynn, O.M.I., sub-deacon. Rev. Lawrence E. Tiege, O.M.I., pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, was master of ceremonies and had general supervision of the Mass and general supervision of the day's arrangements. The assistant master of ceremonies was Rev. E. J. Fox, O.M.I., of Tewksbury, and the attendants to the cardinal were Rev. E. J. Kelleher, Ph.D., while Bishop da Silva was attended by Rev. C. J. Gilligan and Rev. Fr. Labouliere. The censer bearer was Vincent McCarlin. The train bearer to the cardinal was Stephen Wyman, and the acolytes were Alfred Burns and Frank Ralls.

Preached Eloquent Sermon

The special sermon for the occasion was preached by Rev. Peter Bernard Donnelly, O.M.I., of London, England, one of the most noted priests in the Order of Mary Immaculate. In a beautifully modulated voice with simple and graceful language he dwelt on the glory of his order and at times rose to great eloquence in his vivid portrayal of its wonderful achievements. Rev. Fr. Donnelly was the preacher at the Lenten services at St. Patrick's, the Lenten services at St. Paul's, and he is recognized as one of the most learned and effective preachers of the great missionary order to which he belongs. Rev. Fr. Donnelly spoke, in part, as follows:

"This day shall be for a memorial to thee and you shall keep it a feast to the Lord." Ex. xii.

"Today we are holding with solemn pomp and festival the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the religious order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate. In our rejoicings two thoughts are uppermost in our mind and give reason for this festival. They are first, the manifestation of the work of Divine Providence in raising up this religious order in the church; for it is the work of God, and secondly, the consideration of the record of magnificent work achieved by the Oblates during the last hundred years, a record that would thrill the imagination and give courage to the dependent and fills every soul of Mary Immaculate with a holy ardor.

"A religious order is a body of men bound together by a vow of stability following the counsels of perfection and showing forth the mark of holiness in the church. They are the auxiliaries to the Catholic hierarchy. They seek no honor but to serve God. They seek no solace but to be spent in his service. They have a distinctive place in rendering a distinctive service to the church. As we read the history of the church we see great bodies of men called into the service of the church in time of need; either to repel error, or reform discipline, or for a greater extension of the faith. It was thus in the time of Benedict in the 7th century, of St. Francis and St. Dominic in the 13th, of St. Ignatius in the 16th, and of the Oblate Fathers in the dawn of the 19th. A hundred years ago the old world was in a sad state. The French Revolution and the Napoleonic wars had ravaged the countries and devastated religion. It was of that period of spiritual depression that a priest of noble birth, Charles de Mayenod, gathered around him in the south of France a few pious priests to minister to the spiritual wants of the people. The world grew and under the blessing of Pope Leo XII, who solemnly approved of their work, the missionaries, rapidly increasing in numbers, spread over the greater part of the world. In 1841 they crossed the Atlantic and in a short time from Labrador to Alaska they had carried the cross of Christ. Other bands of missionaries, full of the spirit of their founders, ranged along the torrid banks of the Rio Grande, spreading the gospel of Christ and traveled far and wide into Mexico, building up again the overthrown altars. Not only the new world but the ends of the old world were the scenes of Oblate labors. India and Ceylon, South Africa and Australia are other lands where the Oblate missionary seeks and saves souls.

"Nearly one hundred years ago Leo XII started them off with a prophetic blessing, 'Increase and multiply.' Today with a membership of thousands of missionaries they rank, numerically, fifth in the religious orders of the church. The Oblate is the modern missionary. In the seclusion of the monastic house of preparation he equips himself for his work. He has triumphed over his body by continuing over his soul by obedience and over the world by poverty. He comes three times a victor and now offers "To illustrate the spirit of the Oblate order, let me tell you of the part played by the German oblates in South Africa. About 10 years ago they were sent by the pope to preach in the interior 700 miles away. Four times they tried to get there. First their horses died; then they tried oxen with the same result; then the fathers began to die in the fifth attempt, two Oblate fathers reached their destination. There was a relief mission in 1910, and when they got there they found the graves of the two fathers who had succumbed. But what a glorious result they had achieved! To-day in that district there are more than 50 missions. There are schools and hospitals and over 100 missionary labor among the poor natives."

"I shall never forget a visit I paid to the great northwest four years ago. I was bronching in one of the novitiate in that far province and before me were many of the early pioneers. What wonderful men they were! Among them I could almost see Peter and John. With eloquent and earnest faces they looked up at me, but I felt unworthy to preach to them—to them who had gone out into the trackless north and faced the terrors of death and privation with the cross of Christ over their hearts. After the sermon they rose to sing their Te Deum, but their emotions were too strong. The hymn faltered and they wept. That Te Deum will have to be finished in heaven."

"This morning we thank God that we have here the illustrious cardinal of Boston, we thank our Holy Father Benedict XV., we thank our faithful people, but above all we thank God for his manifold blessings to us. He has called forth the Order of Mary Immaculate to save sinners. Today we rank with among the great missionary orders of the church and in 25 years, if we increase in the same proportion and with the same mathematical precision, we shall be first among the orders of the church. This morning I humbly ask the blessing of God for you good people and for the Order of Mary Immaculate."

Cardinal's Address

There was a great hush of expectancy in the church after the communion when Cardinal O'Connell left his throne and walked to the altar rail to add his testimony to that of the formal preacher of the occasion. In a simple, direct way His Eminence spoke of his love of the Oblate order and praised its spirit and the achievements of its great preachers. He spoke especially of the great work done in the Immaculate Conception parish and of the gratitude that the Catholics of Lowell should feel towards the local members of the order.

"It is right and proper that this pageant, commemorative of the 100th anniversary of the founding of one of the great religious orders, should be held here today, for was it not in Lowell that the representatives of Mary Immaculate many years ago found fertile ground and material to work on in their development and progress along religious lines?" This beautiful edifice is a striking reflection of the accomplishments obtained through the efforts of the order whose founding we are observing. There is nothing more inspiring than to look upon such monuments and realize fully what they mean. They show on one side the efforts of those men of Christ who have given their lifework to the cause of religion, and at the same time they demonstrate the responsive tendencies and the generous and whole-hearted spirit of the people.

"You find that discoverers realize their dreams only after severe hardships, mishaps and the conquering of almost insurmountable obstacles. The same applies to the missionaries. The gold hunters of Alaska battled against overwhelming odds, suffered untold privations that they might reach the goal of their ambition, and lost their lives in their efforts to win the material things of life. The missionaries of your order suffered the same hardships, underwent the same privations and finally lost their lives that the goal of their ambition—the salvation of souls—might be realized. That is God's work in its truest sense."

"Think of the wide field of labor covered by these missionaries. Their thirst for the salvation of souls has directed them to all parts of the world. While I was in Japan as the representative of the late pope I saw the effect of their work there and elsewhere. No wonder, then, that their labors are not in vain when the only reward they ask is the liberty and strength to carry on the true work of Christ. It is the most sublime thing that the world has to offer."

"Thinking what has been done during the 100 years just past, look into the great northwest and witness for yourself the wonderful advances made by this order. Working day and night, week in and week out, it has labored year after year for the salvation of souls. In other parts of the world the same record stands out as a shining example of the endeavors of the priests of Mary Immaculate."

"The whole world, as well as the church, congratulates the order on its 100 years of labors and all are indeed thankful for what has been done. Lowell is indebted to your fathers for what has been accomplished here. You started among kindly, generous people and it is no wonder that your work has steadily progressed. We ask God to bless and stimulate you to greater work in the future. You priests of Lowell have done your duty well. The Mass showed it under the directing hands of those revered, saintly men since departed—Garin, McGrath, Trudeau, Smith and others in the name of the people of Lowell, as well as the whole diocese and myself personally. I congratulate you and may God's blessing and protection continue over your people and the Oblates now and forever more."

RELATIONS BETWEEN U.S. AND JAPAN DISCUSSED

TOKIO, October.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—That the relations between Japan and the United States occupy the minds of the Japanese people has been especially evidenced during the last six weeks, when a large number of articles concerning that subject have appeared in newspapers and magazines. The authors have addressed themselves with considerable freedom and frankness to the question. Most of them have been prudent and amicable, seeking to find a solution of matters at issue; others "ingoistic" in tone, have voiced pessimism as to the future. The discussion has hinged largely on China. It is to be noted, however, that more eminent and representative writers have placed themselves in the first class, while the lesser known and more sensational Japanese commentators belong to the second.

Japan's present unprecedented prosperity which is chiefly due to the European war, has swept through the empire a wave of satisfaction that the nation should be attaining such great material progress and it has awakened all minds to the vast possibilities of continued and constantly augmenting advance in finance, industry and commerce. Developments are to be noted in all directions and if the war continues for a long period Japan's position will be greatly enhanced. She will reduce her national debt, she will expand her already immense shipping, she will strengthen her industries and above all she will extend her commerce. It is the great nation of China to which Japan looks with eagerness for commercial growth and China is the crux to the relations between Japan and the United States in the immediate future.

At Tokio the belief prevails that Japan will continue her endeavor to

of the privy council, in the October number of Chuo Koron or Central Review. Viscount Kaneko who knows the United States very well, and knows a good deal about the temperament of the American people, comes out flatly in favor of an economic alliance with the United States. In respect to China, his reason is that a program of harmony and understanding would avoid needless competition and work to the best interests of Japan, the United States and China. He said: "Japan might make temporary profits by dumping her commodities in China and driving away American goods from that market, but such an act would hardly improve the relations between Japan and America." As he saw the situation they had much better define their respective spheres of economic activity. As an instance, he suggested that Japan might monopolize the small hardware trade in China and leave to Americans the market for nails, iron-pipes, etc. In cotton spinning the Japanese might sell coarse threads and the Americans might sell fine threads. It is by such means that a conflict of interests could be avoided. And he added: "If such an effective economic alliance be concluded, agitators may do what they like—there will be no fear of a conflict between the two countries."

Turning to the question of immigration, Viscount Kaneko expressed the opinion that if the Japanese immigrants in the United States are misunderstood there it is largely their own fault. They are not inferior to European immigrants—they are thrifty and humane—but they should adopt American customs and manners, and strive to harmonize with their white neighbors instead of living a life apart.

If their cost of living is increased, they could overcome that by selling their products at the same prices as the American farmers and traders, instead of underselling them. Thus they would root out another cause of ill-feeling.

To accomplish these reforms Viscount Kaneko suggests the formation of Japanese association at San Francisco to oversee the immigrants. If they persist in their ways they should be transported back to Japan. With true assimilation, the writer believed, the Japanese immigrants could reasonably look forward to the right of citizenship and the right to vote. "In short," he said, "they will be treated by the white men as their equals."

The idea of co-operation finds favor both in governmental and non-official circles. It is especially emphasized

CARMODY FIRED AND LABOR MEN ARE SORE

Special to The Sun

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Dec. 4.—Cornelius J. Carmody of Worcester, who for the past three years has been deputy commissioner of labor in this state, has been removed from office by the state board of labor and industries, and John F. Meade of Brockton, chairman of the legislative committee of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor, has been appointed in his place.

Carmody was notified on Friday that he would sever his connection with the office the following day, although the board voted early in November to make the change. Contrary to its general custom of seeking publicity at all times, the board has carefully guarded the fact that the change was to be made, and it was only when friend of Carmody's announced it yesterday at the meeting of the Boston Central Labor union that Boston labor men learned of it.

Despite the fact that Meade is their official representative at the state house, the Boston labor men made secret of their resentment of the action of the board, and particularly of the treatment accorded to Carmody. It is said that absolutely no reason was given him for his dismissal.

Carmody was appointed in December, 1913, by the original state board of labor and industries. That board took the view that the position of deputy commissioner of labor was one which should be filled by a man acceptable to laboring men, and accordingly it interviewed labor leaders in all parts of the state to ascertain their preference; Carmody was not a candidate, but was spoken of favorably by so many men that the members of the board included him among those being considered, and none of those inquired of opposed his selection.

When the original board was removed from office by Gov. Walsh and the new board appointed, Carmody alone of the higher officials under the board remained with the new regime. There had been no hint of dissatisfaction with his work. In fact laboring men who sought the assistance of the board considered that he was the ideal man for the position.

Speculation was rife yesterday as to the cause for the board's action, but no one could be reached who could, or would, explain it. Chairman Alfred W. Donovan could not be reached, and Edwin Mulready, commissioner of labor and executive officer of the board, simply said: "There was no reason for the change, except that the board had an opportunity to secure the services of Mr. Meade, and as the members felt that he was a find, they availed themselves of it."

and well known editor of the Taiyo Magazine, discusses American questions in a leading article on the effect of the Russo-Japanese alliance in the control or domination of the Pacific. He believes that by that alliance Japan has strengthened her position in the Asiatic continent.

Pointing out that during the war the Pacific ocean will be exclusively dominated by Japan, Great Britain and the United States, Dr. Ukita says that the United States with its steady naval expansion, will become the greatest naval power in the Pacific in the future. He added: "If Japan, Great Britain and the United States co-operate peacefully in the Pacific, and derive the common benefits accruing therefrom, tranquility will reign in the Pacific Ocean, but if a peaceful co-operation among these three powers should be found difficult, the Pacific may be turned into a hostile area and the world may witness another great war. At any rate the relations among these three powers in the Pacific are worthy of special study, and we have no doubt that the new Russo-Japanese agreement will have a very important effect thereon."

But Dr. Ukita thinks it is either impossible or unnecessary for any of these three powers to monopolize the sea power in the Pacific. It will be sufficient for Japan, in his opinion, to maintain such a navy as will be competent to protect her from foreign aggression and insure the peace of the Far East.

Other writers participating in the forum include Prof. Shigero Suyehiro, of the Imperial University of Kyoto; Shintaro Inagaki and Eijiro Hirano. Prof. Suyehiro is rather pessimistic from a trip he made to Mexico when he interviewed President Madero and was heartily welcomed. The other contributors are little known.

Writing in the Central Review, Dr. Suyehiro expresses gloomy forebodings for the future of the so-called American problems. He fears that after the war, America with her vast wealth will prove a keen competitor for Japan in the markets of China, which may lead to political friction. Also, he believes that the immigration question is a vital problem for the Japanese people whose future expansion depends upon the manner in which it is solved. He insists that America's treatment of Japanese injuries Japan's prestige with the Chinese, who will never regard Japan as an equal of the European powers. "To solve our Chinese questions completely," he concluded, "we must solve the American question."

To give an idea of the viewpoint of the sensational writers, there are the words of Mr. Inagaki, who says: "The chief motive of the new American militarism is first, to defend the United States against a possible attack from Germany and Japan, and second, to contend for supremacy in the Orient. In short, America has an uneasy conscience over the stopping of Japanese immigrants and is conjuring up fearful hobgoblins of all sorts from her own troubled conscience. Witness the ridiculous Magdalena bay incident!"

And he concluded: "Let America's achenical policy on the Pacific be a warning to us peoples of an oriental state. We, as well as the Chinese, should awake from our delusions, throw aside our petty quarrels and combine against the common enemy."

INDIANS EASILY DEFEAT FORT STRONG

The powerful Indian football team played in real championship form at Shadley Park Saturday afternoon and inflicted a 53 to 0 defeat on the Fort Strong eleven which came here regarded as one of the strongest teams in greater Boston. The Indians claim the championship of the state and they certainly upheld this statement in Saturday's contest, scoring eight touchdowns and holding their opponents far from their own goal line.

The Fort Strong team proved a disappointment. A year ago the eleven forced the Indians to accept a defeat by a narrow margin and as the local team has shown wonderful improvement this season a much closer score was anticipated. But the Indians out-played the Fort Strong team from the very start. The local boys' attack was disastrous so far as the visitors were concerned. The backs, everyone of them, tore through the Fort Strong team for long gains continually and Coach Palmer's line was a veritable stone wall when the opponents had the ball. Every Indian man who played in the game gave a good account of himself and proved competent to play on a championship team.

R. Donnellan, who played half back and left end, was one of the stars. He made one of the longest runs of the game for a touchdown after intercepting a forward pass attempted by the Fort Strong eleven. His all round work on the field was a feature. He made several spectacular catches of forward passes from McIntyre and Gleason which netted the Indians great gains. McIntyre, Williams, Toye, McHugh and Gleason also played in brilliant fashion. The former was the best point getter for the team. He tore through the opposing line for good gains when called upon and his punting and goal kicking was far above the average. He kicked five goals, missing three from bad places. Williams hit the Fort Strong line for some of the best gains of the game and his defensive work also starred. Both McHugh and Toye showed rare judgment in directing the play of the team at all times and Gleason's plunges through the centre were always good for long gains. The entire Indian line, from end to end, played like champions. E. Donnellan at right end played a particularly strong defensive game and like his brother proved fast in running down on punts.

For Fort Strong, Polley and Stites showed frequent flashes but their work was soon checked by the strong defense of the Indians. Their team work did not compare in any way with that of the Indians and but once or twice during the game did they make their down.

The lineup and summary:

Indians	Fort Strong
Pouliot, R. Donnellan, 1e	re. Andrews, Seitz
Quinn, It	rt. Aronsky
Moran, Laurin, Ig	rg. Holloman, Fink

Score: Indians 53, Fort Strong 0. Touchdowns: Gleason, Toye 2, McIntyre 2, R. Donnellan, Williams, Pouliot. Goals from touchdowns, McIntyre 5. Referee, Cawley; Umpire, Miller. Fort Strong, head linesman, Orlin. Time, 11-minute periods.

BURKE AND NEBES TO MEET IN THREE RACES

After considerable wrangling, note writing, challenging and counter challenging Harry Burke, the Bridgeport, Conn., roller skating artist and our own Albert Nebes, who claims the eastern championship, have signed articles to appear at the Rollaway rink on Broad street in three races, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights respectively, to settle the claim of eastern champion. Though the title is sufficient incentive for the match, there is another "little thing" which is demanding the attention of the skaters and that is a side bet of $200 each, making a purse of $600 which the winner will receive in addition to the title. Another advantage that the winner will obtain is the long end of the purse hung up by Manager Moore of the rink. With all these things considered and the fact that the winner will be in a position to demand a match with Gline, the world's champion it is needless to say that each man will put forth the best that is in him to win. While the man who wins two races will be declared the winner, in the event of one winning the first and second the third race must come off Burke, according to all reports, and newspaper clippings are exceptionally fast man, and his own letters show that he has remarkable confidence in his ability. This match should prove one of the best of the season, and plans have been made to accommodate large crowds.

OLD CY YOUNG HOLDS HITLESS INNING RECORD

Tom Hughes of the Boston Nationals did some neat pitching when he worked in 16 consecutive innings without allowing a base hit to be made off him, but it is hardly enough to be a major league record, although many papers published the feat as being the best posted in this line.

There are many records in baseball which have Hughes' performance faded. In minor leagues the mark of pitching 16 consecutive innings without a base hit by no means common. It has been accomplished on a dozen or more occasions. In the majors the real holder of this record is no less a personage than Denton Tecumseh Young. Young, better known as Cy, is the holder of several other records is unusual feats in the pitching line.

It was back in April, 1905, that Young proceeded to shatter all figures in this line and before he got through he had created a new record in hurling hitless ball, and one which stands today clean-cut and without a spot or blemish and without doubt the greatest piece of pitching the game ever witnessed.

On April 30, against the Washington team, Young took Winter's place in the third inning, no one out, and pitched out the game, retiring the next 21 batters in order. Young's next game took place May 5, against the Athletics, in the days when Connie Mack sported a real club. Cy pitched the best game of his long career that day, and retired 27 of those famous swatsmen of Mack in the top story.

John Kowalski was overcome by smoke and was removed from the building, none too soon to save his life. The ambulance was summoned and the man was taken to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment. The damage done the building by fire will be slight.

GRASS FIRE ALARMS

Shortly before midnight Saturday word was telephoned to the central fire station that there was a lively blaze in progress at Shedd park and Engine 4 was sent to the scene, but when the firemen arrived there was no sign of a fire.

Just one pitcher in the history of baseball, that is, a hurler who was working in a league of recognized standing and class, is credited with pitching two complete games in succession wherein the opposing batsmen failed to register a base hit. A big pitcher sailing under the name of Gene Wright, who hurled for the Dayton club of the Western association back in 1901, on Sept. 1 of that season pitched a no-hit no-run game against Columbus. He followed up this feat by turning the same trick against the Grand Rapids team on Sept. 1.

BASEBALL IS POOR RISK
SAYS MAGNATE HUSTON

"My two years' experience in the baseball business has taught me a great deal," said Capt. Tillinghast L. Huston, U.S.V., retired, and part owner of the New York Yankees, last week. "And most important is that there isn't enough money in the baseball business to pay the salaries that have been demanded since I have been in it."

"There is not the profit in baseball that many persons imagine. For a good business man it isn't the safest kind of investment. I have found that out from personal experience. And baseball will remain a precarious business until the salaries are brought down to a level the business can afford. Under the present system the players are getting all the profits."

"Now, do not misunderstand me. I do not mind paying ball players high salaries, and I am discussing this question from a business man's standpoint. For instance, we pay Frank Baker lots of money, but he is worth every penny he gets. I would not pay him less. His ability to win games and his power as a drawing card make him a valuable asset. He is worth the money as a business proposition. But there are a great many players who have not earned anything like the amount of money they received. I do not blame them exactly, as they get as high salaries as possible. But I repeat, the business cannot afford it."

PAID ELECTION BET

Joseph A. Plante, a prominent resident of South Lowell, paid his political bet yesterday afternoon when he pushed a wheelbarrow in which was comfortably seated his brother-in-law, Alexandre Pelletier, from home of the latter in Acton street, to the A.C.F. hall in Carmine street. The bet was witnessed by several friends of the two men, who cheered the winner of the bet as he went by in his "barrow."

The members of the South Lowell Improvement association were in attendance at the hall and when the brothers-in-law made their appearance they gave them quite a reception. In the course of the afternoon a meeting of the Improvement association was held and a feature of the meeting was the creation of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, Alphonse Brun; vice president, Eddie Polletier; secretary, Amadeo Suprenant; treasurer, Albert Morin; permanent committee, French Duval, Chairman, E. Marchand; President, Theophile Thibault; and Eastes Christian; auditors, Amer Gagnon and Remondine de Gagny; sergeant-at-arms, Eddie Pelletier.

JOHN KOWALSKI WAS OVERCOME BY SMOKE

A fire which did comparatively little damage to property broke out in a 3-story frame tenement block owned by Mary T. Whelley at 29 Fenwick street, corner of Sullivan's court, early last night, but the smoke was so dense that one person was overcome and it was necessary to raise ladders to assist a dozen in making their escape, it being impossible to go through the smoke-filled corridors.

Firemen and police officers were kept busy for five or ten minutes assisting in rescuing the occupants of the building. The blaze itself was confined to the cellar and did not do any material damage to the building, but the smoke made its way through practically every room in the six tenements in the block.

The blaze was discovered by John Morasky who lives in the vicinity and he sounded an alarm from box 134, Fenwick street, near Suffolk, at 6:20 o'clock.

The fire started in a cellar beneath a grocery store owned by George Short and located on the ground floor of the block.

In their efforts to get air, for the smoke was very dense, the tenants crowded to the windows and when the firemen arrived were greatly excited. Ladders were set against the walls, and on these seven children and five grown persons were assisted down by the firemen and Patrolmen Dwyer and Basley. One group, a woman and three children, was taken from the top story.

John Kowalski was overcome by smoke and was removed from the building, none too soon to save his life. The ambulance was summoned and the man was taken to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment. The damage done the building by fire will be slight.

DID NOT BREAK RECORD

Shortly before midnight Saturday word was telephoned to the central fire station that there was a lively blaze in progress at Shedd park and Engine 4 was sent to the scene, but when the firemen arrived there was no sign of a fire.

Portions of the department were called out three times yesterday to extinguish grass fires. At 4 o'clock Hose 9 responded to a still alarm for a fire in Plain street and a short time later the same company was called to extinguish a fire on the Marshall road. At 3:14 o'clock the chemical located in Pawtucketville was called to the East Meadow road, where there was a brush fire in progress.

FUNERALS

MARSHALL—The funeral of Mrs. Addie E. Marshall was held from her home, 652 Main street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Benjamin R. Harris, pastor of the Palace Street Baptist church. Appropriate selections were sung by Mr. Arthur T. Mum and Mrs. Nano M. Healey. The bearers were Messrs. Edward S. Chaffee, Albert H. Birge, Adinomar J. Bates and Herbert H. Russell. Burial was in the family lot, Westhaven cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

CHOGATE—The funeral services of George E. Chogate were held at his home, 21 A street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and were private. The services, which were simple but impressive, were conducted by a near friend of the deceased by request, a portion of the service being the reading of the 23rd psalm. The bearers were Messrs. Franklin E. Johnson, John B. Chapman, C. Rufus Flood and Edward Cotter. Burial was in the family lot in the Edison cemetery, where prayers were offered at the grave. The funeral was in charge of C. Rufus Flood under the direction of Undertakers Young & Blake.

STONIS—The funeral of Mary Stonis, daughter of William and Emma Stonis, took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the home of her parents, 14 Winter street. Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery, under the direction of Undertakers Archambault & Son.

COLLINS—The funeral services of John Robert Collins were held Saturday afternoon at the home of his parents, 13 England street. The services were conducted by Rev. Alfred R. Hussey, pastor of the First Unitarian church. Burial was in the family lot in the Lowell cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Headley.

leaders to complete before the March adjournment what remains of a constructive program of reform legislation long ago conceived. All are convinced, however, of the paramount importance of supply bills, and these must take precedence, general legislation to be considered whenever time will permit.

Of the supply measures there are, beside the regular army, navy and coast defense supply bills, several measures bearing on the military efficiency of the country. Among these is the Chamberlain bill for a modified form of universal military training modeled after the Swiss system. Hearings are to be held by the Senate military committee, but action before adjournment seems improbable.

Estimates for the naval bill call for an expenditure next year of approximately $300,000,000, and authorization for construction of three dreadnaughts and at least one battle cruiser to add to the four dreadnaughts and four battle cruisers ordered constructed as

CRIMES IN THE "MOVIES"

The state of Pennsylvania is taking the lead in barring from the moving picture shows all illustrations of robberies and crimes of various kinds that might suggest to the innocent the commission of such crimes and even show how every detail is carried out.

The movies furnish the most realistic representation of human action known apart from the actual events portrayed. The robbery of a bank is shown in pictures quite as clearly as if it were a reality. So is the looting of a store and the striking down of the custodians with concealed weapons.

Since the moving pictures came to be so popular almost every conceivable crime has been either illustrated or suggested to old and young that the youth of today is much better versed in the doings of criminals than were intelligent adults of a generation ago.

It is true that in most cases the show indicates that the criminal eventually comes to grief, but in far too many instances, outlaws are exploited as heroes and given a prominence and an eclat for their cleverness that is liable to excite even the envy of some individuals whose mental balance and self control are notably deficient.

The moving picture film presents scenes so graphically as to form a lasting impression upon the youthful mind and when the seeds of scandal are thus scattered upon susceptible soil, the results cannot fail to be of the very worst kind.

Already the evil of the movies when not properly censored stands as a menace to every community in which they are presented, a menace particularly to the young and one the evil results of which are difficult to estimate. Hence it is gratifying to find that the state of Pennsylvania takes a decided stand against the portrayal of crimes upon the canvas. Let us hope that for the protection of children and adults as well as against moral poison other states will follow the example.

BONAR LAW FOR PREMIER

Congress opened today and prepared to take up the various legislative matters left pending when it adjourned late in the summer.

Foremost of all will come the railroad question which has forced itself to the front as a result of the difficulties encountered by the roads in meeting the transportation needs of the country. Primarily, the scarcity of cars was set down as the cause, but later it came to light that the roads are subservient to too many bosses. Large systems doing an interstate business are fettered by the regulations of forty-eight states and also by the control of the interstate commerce commission.

The companies are chafing over petty interference with their operations and allege that this is one of the principal reasons why they have not been able to keep pace with the growth of the great volume of business throughout the country.

The remedy demanded is federal incorporation and control and relief from state supervision.

In reference to the need of such a change there is practically no difference of opinion. It is acknowledged to be the sole cure for many of the worst transportation problems of the day. There is little doubt as to what congress will do about it.

Another big question which congress will take up is the legislation necessary to supplant the Adamson law.

President Wilson was criticized for his course in favoring the Adamson law as the only possible mode of averting a great strike. It will now be seen that he adopted that method merely as a preliminary to a law which will make railroad strikes illegal until after a thorough investigation and that will also afford ample protection to the public against all such dangers in the future. What plan the president will recommend for that purpose is not yet known; but it is like his original intention, it will doubtless be practical, effective, and such as will meet all the exigencies of the situation.

In addition to these measures there will doubtless be some discussion of the necessities of an embargo on the export of certain foodstuffs and possibly some action may be taken to deal with the cold storage and other agencies that hoard the food supply to await higher prices even when prices have already reached unprecedented figures. Altogether the short session of congress may be looked forward to with full confidence that it will solve some of the biggest problems that confront any congress since Civil war days.

AN ALLEGED MENACE

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 4.—"The day is over to American economic strength through the tendency of union labor to place itself above law and order is one big cloud on our horizon when we look to the days to follow this world conflict," said former President Taft in an address at the chamber of commerce here today.—dispatch.

That alleged danger existed when Mr. Taft was president and even when Colonel Roosevelt was president, but neither did anything to correct it. President Wilson in the coming session of congress will recommend that proper legal restrictions be placed upon all combinations whether of capital or labor, so that the interests of the nation and all its people will be safe.

The republicans devoted all their energies to pampering the trusts and the money power, but neither was considered a menace to the country by such men as Taft and Roosevelt. These republican elements will also be placed under proper restraint by democratic legislation.

Newspapers With Odd Titles

Every man to his hobby. In Columbus there is a man whose chief joy is in a collection of newspaper titles. He has made a specialty of clipping queer headings and the assortment is oddly interesting.

Of course, there are plenty of "Couriers," "Journals" and "Heralds" scattered over the country, and there are "Headlights," "Flashlights," "Bees," "Eagles," "Owls," "Mirrors" and "News-Letters," but when it comes to "Derrick," "Meddlers," "Telescopes," "Flags" and "Stumbags" the class is more limited. In Hot Springs there is published "The Arkansas Thomas Cat," and other titles just as unusual are "The Sledge Hammer," "The Irrepressible," "The Silent Worker" and "Gull."

Frequently it is possible to tell from the title of a newspaper the state in which it is published. For instance "The Chieftain" is in Oklahoma; "The Rustler" and "The Lariat" are in Texas; "Big Hole Breeze" in Montana, and "The Roundup" in Wyoming—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

Back to the State

When our fathers and grandfathers were "school size" there was no such thing as a "tablet" on which to work examples and write spelling lessons. The smooth, gray slate was the medium of heart-to-heart communication between the pupil and the presiding deity of knowledge.

The older generation can shut its eyes and see it still—the slate with its red felt or bare rim, the hole in the frame from which dangled two strings holding respectively a bit of wet sponge and a sharpened slate pencil. It was so easy to correct mistakes with the damp sponge—or sorrowful to say—the tip of a finger wet in the mouth. And when everything was finished, the whole problem was wiped off, and the proverbial "clean slate" was ready for a new start.

The sanitarians waged war on the slate because of the wretched process of cleaning, and the school board fought it, because they wanted to sell the tablets, and the teachers and parents were on the side of the sanitarians.

But the scarcity of white paper pulp and the consequent high price of tablet paper may result in a return of the slate to the schoolroom, from which it has so long been an exile. For while the "kiddies" will find it rather awkward to accept this old-new school tool, but it will look quite natural to their parents.

LOOKS LIKE EVASION

The United States has asked Berlin to stop deporting Belgians and now it remains to be seen whether the protest of the United States will have any weight with the offending power.

Germany has seem fit to confess to a blunder in sinking the Marconi, claiming that it was mistaken for a transport. When Germany wants to shift the responsibility for an act of this kind she lays it to the blunder of a submarine commander or to the act of Austria. This may avert a breach between Germany and our government, but it looks very much like a convenient method of evading strict accountability clause in one of President Wilson's notes relative to submarine methods.

MEMORIAL ORATORS

Hon. John Jacob Rogers' address at the Elks' memorial meeting marks him as an orator of ability on such occasions and is likely to bring him many requests for such service in the future. His apt poetical allusions to the fleeting character of life and the passing of friends to the great beyond, touched a responsive chord in every heart. The memorials in Congress bring out some of that body's most glowing examples of oratory. On such occasions in the future Mr. Rogers can be relied upon to take a high place.

AN ABLE JURIST

Of the many able and learned jurists that adorn the Massachusetts bench few have added more lustre to the character of our judiciary or more honor to the state than Justice Frank G. Fessenden. The Boston University Law school is to honor him at a banquet in observance of the completion of a quarter century on the bench. Were the celebration of a more general character Judge Fessenden would be surprised at the number of his friends.

The two and a half cent piece would chiefly benefit beggars by adding in a great many cases 100 per cent to their income.

Sister's Problem

She's got things for the babies. And she's bought a gift for me. She's got a toy for all the kids To grace the Christmas tree. She has presents for her uncles And her aunts, but doesn't know A single, solitary thing To give unto her beau.

She's bought for dear old mother. And she's bought a gift for dad. And she's bought for sister Nellie But I think she's going mad. For, in spite of all her thinking, Even now she doesn't know What to give on Christmas morning To the man who is her beau.

It's hard to buy," she murmurs. "For a man," and then she sighs: "Hard to make three dollars purchase Anything that seems a prize." And her brow with care is wrinkled. And her heart is full of woe. For the shopping days grow fewer. And there's nothing for her beau.

Life is ever full of problems. Problems grave that sore perplex; Old and young face situations That arise, it seems, to vex. Sleepless nights and hours of tossing Every one of us must know. She is losing sleep this season On the gift to hand her beau.

Many Lowell people are daily testifying that they have regained their health through the use of Plant Juice. One of the most recently signed testimonies received is that of Mr. G. H. Allen, who lives at No. 47 West London street, and is in the employ of the Boston & Maine R. R. He said:

"I have been troubled with my stomach for 20 years; had terrible indigestion and bilious attacks, sick headaches and a fluttering sensation around my heart, which was caused by gas. I was so dizzy that I felt as if I would fall over at times and my work seemed to be a drag to me. I could not sleep, and would toss and tumble all night long; my liver and kidneys were affected and I had terrible pains in my back and side. I could not eat any meat or vegetables and had to exist on the lightest kind of diet, as I could not retain any solid food in my stomach. I had spent hundreds of dollars trying to find something that would give relief, but never got anything until I began to take your Plant Juice. I certainly 'did the work' for me, and I can now eat anything I want, and have a good appetite for all of my meals! I sleep well and have no more pains or aches. I feel like I have been born again. That Plant Juice has been worth its weight in gold to me. It has cured me of all my troubles and I take great pleasure in giving this testimonial for it."

The Plant Juice Man is at The Days Drug Store, in Merrimack Square, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remarkable product.

They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly eruct it. Why enter the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. It is best not to do strong enemas. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD

It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health while your blood is deficient in quantity or quality.

The blood circulates throughout every portion of the body except the hair and nails. It takes the nourishment from the food and distributes it to the various muscles and organs; it takes also any medication that is administered through the mouth. The blood is the only means by which medicine can reach the nerves. If the blood is thin its carrying capacity is lessened because it is the red corpuscles in the blood that carry oxygen and other needed constituents to the various parts of the body.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People increase the red corpuscles in the blood. They enable it to absorb more oxygen, to carry more life and strength to the weakened organs. In any disease in which the patient becomes thin and pale Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be used successfully to combat the anemia and build up the health and strength.

"Building Up the Blood" is a booklet, full of good information. Every mother and every growing girl should have one. It is sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Price 25 cents.

KILLS BROTHER-IN-LAW IN BOSTON STREET

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—Sabino Innacone of 424 Commercial street, killed his brother-in-law, Carmello Rappini, through the streets of the North End yesterday and at Hanover and Endicott streets, in the presence of hundreds of passersby, opened fire upon him with pistol.

Rappini stumbled and fell to the sidewalk, dying 15 minutes later in the relief hospital, Haymarket square, while Innacone, caught after a short chase by Patrolman Lewis of the Hanover street station, was locked up on a charge of murder. He will be arraigned in the city police court this morning.

The slaying followed more than year of brooding on the part of Innacone, according to the police of the Hanover street station.

NEWS FROM CITY HALL AND DEPARTMENTS

The civil service examinations which have been advertised for some time at city hall will begin tomorrow and will continue until Thursday, being held each day from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. On Tuesday the examination for clerks, messengers and water inspectors, classes 3 and 11, will be held, and on Wednesday the examination for policemen and firemen will be held. The number to take the examinations is the smallest for a number of years in this city. The largest class for any one day will not exceed 29.

Pension Money

The city has just received from the federal government $10,600 which will be distributed in pensions to 208 veterans of the Civil war and 399 veterans.

Gen. Butler's Picture

This morning Will Rounds, the well known photographer was taking a photograph of the fine picture of General Benjamin F. Butler which hangs in the reception room. This picture was a gift of General Butler's family and was painted by Walter Gilman Page in 1864. Mr. Rounds has been commissioned by Mr. Albert W. David of the United States Cartridge company to make a life-sized copy of the painting which is to hang in the office of the manufacturing plant.

The men of the park department have been trimming the trees on Fort Hill for the past few days and they will continue the work on the South common. All is in readiness at Shedd park for the flooding, but the department waits for the ground to freeze before turning on the water. This will be done at night and it usually takes two or three nights to frost the skating area.

Superintendents Norman and Harvey B. Greene attended the sessions of the American Park Institute in Newton last Thursday. Dinner was prepared by the pupils of the Technical school and served by them in the school building.

Meetings

There will be a regular meeting of the municipal council tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and there will be a meeting of the cemetery commission in the afternoon at 4:30.

Permits

Among the permits issued the past few days are: To Arthur Genest, for a 3-family dwelling at 19-21 Willow street, $3500; to Arthur Genest for a 3-family dwelling at 84-86 Chestnut street, $3500, and to Andie Sokolow for repairs after fire at 173 Lakeview avenue, estimated cost $500.

POLICE LOOKING FOR WINDOW SMASHERS

Two large plate glass windows one in the store of Job R. Collett, watchmaker, 255 Middlesex street, and another in the store of The Racket, at 255 Middlesex street, conducted by Henry Warshauer, were broken either late Saturday night or early yesterday morning. The police have been working on the case but have as yet been unable to locate the guilty party or parties.

In each case the large pieces of glass are shattered and would seem to indicate that some person hurled stones against them. So far as could be learned there is nothing missing from either of the stores.

THIRD DEATH FROM AUTO RACE ACCIDENT

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 4.—Frank Galvin, the automobile driver who was injured when his mechanic, Gaston Weigle, and Hughay Hughes, another driver, were killed at the Uniontown speedway last Saturday afternoon, died in the hospital here today. Galvin's skull was fractured.

NORTH BILLERICA

Rev. Carleton L. Feener preached his first sermon as pastor of the North Billerica Baptist church yesterday. His subject was "The Power of Sympathy." Rev. Mr. Feener also preached at the evening service, taking for his subject "The Forgiving Savior."

PRESIDENT WILSON TO SPEAK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Wilson will speak here Friday night at the conference on social insurance, which opens tomorrow under the auspices of the International Association of Industrial Accident Board of Commissions.

BOARD OF HEALTH CONDEMNS SEWERS

present sewer department taking the initiative in such matters, the remedy lies within the power of the board of health and it seems to be imperative that drastic measures be taken by either the board of health or the state board of health."

After some discussion, the board voted relative to the Chestnut street sewer outlet: "It is the opinion of the board of health that the sewer outlet mentioned in the communication be extended further into the river and that no notice to that effect be sent to Commissioners Morse."

The board also voted to grant a license for a stable at 5 Carrine street and no action was taken relative to a kennery at 292 Stevens street.

CUPID PUTS ONE OVER ON UNCLE SAM

At a meeting of the board of health at city hall this morning, the body went on record as favoring the extension of the Chestnut street sewer further into the so-called "mill pond" as a safeguard to the public health and called attention to unfavorable and unhealthy conditions found at the entrance of the Wall street sewer. These matters were dealt with partly on the recommendation of the waterways committee.

The board of health recently visited the banks of the Concord river and paid special attention to the outlet of the Chestnut street and Wall street sewers. They stated at this morning's meeting that at the outlet at Wall st. they found a large accumulation of bed springs, tins, old iron and other refuse that prevented the ready flow of sewage into the river. They also stated that at low water there is considerable stench from sewage which does not escape.

At the Chestnut street outlet, the board said, was found a condition which is a menace to the public health, the sewage flowing over dry land before reaching the river. When the water is low there is a strong stench at this point. In the letter to the board of health relative to this, the waterways committee had said "there being but little prospect of our

BIRTHDAY PARTY GIVEN
MASTER TED TRYON

Master Ted Tryon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Tryon of 182 Riverdale street, observed the seventh anniversary of his birth at the home of his parents yesterday. About a score of his little relatives and friends were present to assist in the celebration and the afternoon and evening were spent in a very enjoyable manner.

Among those present were the eleven children of Lawrence, who are cousins of Master Tryon. Games were played and an excellent musical and literary program was carried out. The interior of the house was prettily decorated for the occasion. Refreshments were served.

The little host was the recipient of many appropriate presents, and when the party broke up the visitors wished Master Tryon many happy returns of the day.

MATRIMONIAL

George B. Fallon and Miss Mae Field, both of North Chelmsford, were married yesterday afternoon, the ceremony being performed at St. John's rectory by the pastor, Rev. Charles P. Heaney. The bride's maid was a sister of the bride, Miss M. Field, while the best man was Owen Fallon, a brother of the bridegroom. At the close of the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, in Princeton street. After an extended honeymoon trip the couple will make their home in Webster, where the groom holds a position of overseer.

CONGRESS RECONVENES

soon as possible in the big naval bill of the last session. To keep up with the three-year building program provision also should be made for additional scout cruisers, destroyers, fleet and coast submarines and auxiliary ships.

Conservation legislation will be demanded by its champions, but whether time will permit is a dubious matter. Water power bills which failed at the last session will be revived. They include the public lands, water power bill and the measure to provide for development of water power sites in navigable streams by private capital. There also is pending the Newlands $60,000,000 bill for general development and co-ordinated control of the country's waterways. Measures are pending also for conservation of mineral resources and improved control of flood waters. Other measures left over for which attention will be asked are the Shafto bill to provide civil government for Porto Rico and the Hoke Smith bill to create a system of vocational education with federal aid throughout the United States.

The senate will have three new members to inaugurate when the gavel falls today. It also must elect a new president pro tempore owing to the death of Senator James P. Clarke, of Arkansas. In the new majority leader must be elected for the next senate coming to the defeat of Senator Kern of Indiana and there is considerable maneuvering among democratic senators for the honor of president pro tem. Some senators who control the leadership in the next senate are being urged to accept the vacancy, but are reluctant to do so. Among those under consideration are Senators Smathers of Delaware; Welsh of Connecticut; North Carolina and Bankhead, Alabama. In the section the democrats must take into consideration what is likely to be done with the majority leadership next year. If that is to go to a southern democrat—and the successor to Kern most prominently mentioned is Martin of Virginia—the new president pro tem probably will be chosen from the northern democrats.

Three new senators who will take their seats today are James E. Watson, republican, of Indiana; elected in place of Thomas Taggart, democrat, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Shively; Bart M. Gerould, republican of Maine, who succeeds Senator Burleigh, deceased, and William F. Kirby, democrat, of Arkansas, succeeding the late Senator Clarke. The election of Watson reapplied to favor some kind of embargo on food exports or other action to reduce soaring prices. Representative Fitzgerald, democrat, of New York, had announced his intention to introduce today a bill authorizing the president to declare an embargo on exportation of wheat.

CONGRESS RECONVENES CROWDED PROGRAM OF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Congress reconvened at noon today for the short session which will mark the closing of President Wilson's first term.

With a crowded program of legislation foremost in which is the president's plan for railroad legislation senators and representatives settled down to work as Speaker Clark and Vice President Marshall brought down the gavel.

Today's opening was marked by the usual flood of bills and resolutions, many of which are expected to die in committee with the congress itself on March 4.

The energies of the administration leaders were at once concentrated on the prospect of the big supply bills necessary for conduct of the government and upon the limited program of the general legislation.

Speaker Clark declared the next house of the last election would show 216 democrats. He conceded 213 to the republicans.

"We have the control of the house without any doubt," he said.

Led by Vice President Marshall, many senators and representatives called at the White House to pay their respects

JURY REPORTS
$3500 VERDICT
FOR INJURY

A verdict of $3500 for the plaintiff was reported by the jury in the case of Avidis Mavridis of Winchester against the Baggs & Cobb Tanning company of that place when the local session of superior court resumed in the Gorham steel court house after the holiday adjournment. The Winchester case was the only matter heard last week and occupied nearly three days of actual trial. The plaintiff sued to recover for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained in the defendant company's plant. He alleged that his hand was permanently injured by being caught in a machine. J. D. Carney represented Mavridis and D. C. Knowles appeared for the defense.

Lowell Case

The trial of the suit of James Regis of Lowell vs. Antonio Simeone, also of Lowell, was continued this forenoon. The suit is brought as a result of the defendant converting the equipment and machinery of a tent factory in Market st. to his own use. The property involved is said to be worth about $1800. Several witnesses testified in the case today. Edward J. Tierney for the plaintiff and Bennett Silverblatt for the defense.

Jury Impaneled

Just prior to the resumption of the aforementioned case a jury was impaneled to hear the suit of Mrs. Vida S. Walker administratrix of the estate of Benjamin Hirst vs. the Farnell Gage Ice Company of this city. The ad damnum is $1000. Trull & Wier appear for the plaintiff and Albert Sawyer for the defense.

7 SHIPS BLOWN UP BY BOMBS PLACED IN CARGOES AT N.Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The steamships blown up in the Russian harbor from the cargoes.

Samuel Gitter, a Brooklyn junk dealer, has been arrested in connection with the case, on a federal charge of having stolen articles in his possession.

The police allege that Gitter had in his possession binoculars identified as part of a $12,000 consignment charged today at police headquarters by a Rochester firm to the Russian government.

The official report of the explosion from Petrograd said 341 persons were killed and 667 injured.

According to the German Overseas News agency seven steamers were blown up and 37

storehouses were razed by the force of the explosion.

The German report said that a German submarine was responsible, having torpedoed the steamer Baron Breccini, one of the ships at anchor in the harbor. The report described the harbor as resembling at the time a "burning volcano."

The explosion occurred about November 16, although both the date and the circumstances as cabled from various sources were indefinite.

CHIHUAHUA RETAKEN BY CARRANZA FORCES

JUAREZ, Mexico, Dec. 4.—It was officially announced at military headquarters yesterday that the Carranza forces have recaptured the city of Chihuahua, having driven the Villa bandits out. Telegraphic communication with Chihuahua City over the federal line has been re-established.

General Carlos Obregon entered Chihuahua City from the north at 7 o'clock last night, according to a telegram received today by General Francisco Gonzales, brigadier commander. The message was from General Obregon and was dated Chihuahua City.

General Gonzales was preparing to leave late today for Chihuahua City with a large command of Carranza troops. He said telegraphic communication has been restored south to Jimenez. Latest reports here are that many Villa followers have been captured and killed. No definite news has been received about Americans, but it is believed here that all foreigners except Chinese are safe.

It was announced that Villa has left for western Chihuahua following trains of loot.

General Francisco Murguia, the Carranza commander, who has been moving slowly northward from Torreon, was also reported to have entered the city today after having defeated the Villa column 30 miles south of Chihuahua City.

A fine musical program was carried out, after which refreshments were served.

Thieves entered the variety store of J. E. Hatch, 529 Gorham street, corner of Carter street, early yesterday morning, access being gained by a window on the Carter street side of the store which was broken enough to allow the person to slip his hand through and unlock the window. Property to the value of about $50 was taken. This is the second break that has been made in this store within six months.

elaborate, the choir having been augmented for the occasion under the direction of Joseph P. Courtney, with Miss Hugh Walker at the organ. A great part of the mass was sung by a male quartet, but at intervals the full choir sang some of the fervent hymns of Cardinal O'Connell. When during the service the full lighting system was utilized and the solemn music swelled overhead, the church presented a scene of religious exaltation that cannot easily be forgotten.

The sermon of the occasion was preached by Rev. F. B. Donnelly, O.M.I., of London, England, who in brief but eloquent discourses touched on the numerous achievements of the Oblate order and its growth through the last century.

Long before 11 a. m. the church was crowded to capacity, recalling some of the mission congregations of the parish, and people stood in the aisles and at the back of the church. A few minutes before the opening of the services Cardinal O'Connell walked from the parochial residence, accompanied by an escort of the O.M.I. cadets, Cross Deuter Thomas Higgins, acolytes, clergymen from every parish of the city, and attendants and his gentleman in waiting, William J. Doyley, in the rich regalia of his office. As the procession passed into the church the choir of 80 voices burst into the ringing processionals, "The Cross and the Flag," and the cardinal with his escort passed up the main aisle between lines of O.M.I. cadets standing by rigid attention. The touches of color made by the robes of Bishop da Silva, Monsignor O'Brien and the vivid scarlet of the cardinal blended beautifully with the snowy supplies and the black of the attendant priests. The congregation stood until His Eminence had taken his place in the sanctuary.

The officers of the mass were as follows: Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O.M.I., celebrant; with Rev. J. H. Kuecke, O.M.I., pastor of St. Joseph's, deacon, Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., sub-deacon; Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, was master of ceremonies and had general supervision of the day's arrangements. The assistant master of ceremonies was Rev. E. J. Fox, O.M.I., of Tewksbury, and the acolytes to the cardinal were Rt. Rev. William O'Brien, P.R., and Rev. D. J. Kelleher, P.D., while Bishop da Silva was attended by Rev. C. J. Gilligan and Rev. Fr. Labesque. The censor bearer was Vincent McCarthy. The train bearer to the cardinal was Stephen Wynnar, and the acolytes were Alfred Burns and Frank Hall.

Breached Eloquent Sermon

The special sermon for the occasion was preached by Rev. Peter Bernard Donnelly, O.M.I., of London, England, one of the most noted priests in the order of Mary Immaculate. In a beautifully modulated voice and with simple and graceful language dwelt on the plan of his order and at this case to great eloquence in his vivid portrayal of its wonderful achievements. Rev. Fr. Donnelly was the preacher at the Lenten services at St. Patrick's, New York last March and he is recognized as one of the most learned and effective preachers of the great missionary order to which he belongs. Rev. Fr. Donnelly spoke, in part, as follows:

"This day shall be for a memorial to thee and you shall keep it a feast to the Lord. Ex. xl.

"Today we are tolding with solemn pomp and festival the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the religious order of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate. In our rejoicings two thoughts are uppermost in our mind and give reason for this festival. They are first, the manifestation of the work of Divine Providence in raising up this religious order in the church; for it is the work of God; and secondly, the consideration of the record of magnificent work achieved by the Oblates during the last hundred years; a record that would thrill the emotionless and give courage to the despondent and ill every son of Mary Immaculate with a holy pride.

"A religious order is a body of men bound together by a vow of stability following the counsels of perfection and showing forth the mark of holiness in the church. They are the auxiliaries to the Catholic hierarchy. They seek no honor but to serve God. They seek no solace but to be spent in his service. They have a distinctive place in and render a distinctive service to the church. As we read the history of the church we see great bodies of men called into the service of the church in time of need; either to repel error, or reform discipline, or for a greater extension of the faith. It was thus in the time of Benedict in the 7th century, of St. Francis and St. Dominic in the 13th, and of St. Ignatius in the 16th century, and of the Oblate Fathers in the dawn of the 19th. A hundred years ago the old world was in a sad state. The French Revolution and the Napoleonic wars had ravaged the countries and devastated religion. It was of that period of spiritual desolation that a priest of noble birth, Charles de Mayenne, gathered around him in the south of France a few pious priests to minister to the spiritual wants of the people. The work grew and under the blessing of Pope Leo XII, who solemnly approved of their work, the missionaries rapidly increasing in numbers, spread over the greater part of the world. In 1841 they crossed the Atlantic and in a short time carried the cross of Christ. Other bands of missionaries, full of the spirit of their founder, ranged along the torrid banks of the Rio Grande, spreading the gospel of Christ and traveled far and wide into Mexico, building up again the overthrown altars. Not only the new world but the ends of the old world are the scenes of Oblate labor. India and Ceylon, South Africa and Australia are other lands where the Oblate missionary seeks and saves souls. In the New England states their work is well known and in what I might call their own home town, Lowell, they are the inspiration of the people.

RELATIONS BETWEEN U.S. AND JAPAN DISCUSSED

TOKIO, October—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—That the relations between Japan and the United States occupy the minds of the Japanese people has been especially evidenced during the last six weeks, when a large number of articles concerning that subject have appeared in newspapers and magazines. The authors have addressed themselves with considerable freedom and frankness to the question. Most of them have been prudent and amiable, seeking to find a solution of matters at issue; others, "jingoistic" in tone, have voiced pessimism as to the future. The discussion has hinged largely on China. It is to be noted, however, that more eminent and representative writers have placed themselves in the first class, while the lesser known and more sensational Japanese commentators belong to the second.

Japan's present unprecedented prosperity, which is chiefly due to the European war, has swept through the empire a wave of satisfaction that the nation should be attaining such great material progress and it has awakened all minds to the vast possibilities of continued and constantly augmenting development in finance, industry and commerce. Developments are to be noted in all directions and if the war continues for a long period Japan's position will be greatly enhanced. She will reduce her national debt, she will expand her already immense shipping, she will strengthen her industries and above all she will extend her commerce. It is the great nation of China to which Japan looks with eager eye for commercial growth and China is the crux to the relations between Japan and the United States in the immediate future.

At Tokio the belief prevails that Japan will continue her endeavor to increase her political influence in China. But Japanese business men are constantly clamoring for a political ascendancy that will not be so abrupt or so imprudent as to endanger a peaceful economic conquest of the neighboring republic. Put differently, conservative Japanese want to break down the barrier of distrust existing in China against things Japanese and replace it with a feeling of confidence which will establish free trade relations based on business factors.

The readiness with which the Chinese recently granted American capitalists a concession to build a long railroad and their hesitation in making contracts with the Japanese has awakened Japanese to the fact that ascendancy in China to be successful must be accompanied by some measure of trust and confidence.

To accomplish these reforms Viscount Kaneko suggests the formation of a Japanese association at San Francisco to oversee the immigrants. If they persist in their ways they should strive to harmonize with their white neighbors instead of living a life apart. If their cost of living is increased, they could overcome that by selling their products at the same prices as the American farmers and traders. Instead of underselling them, thus they would root out another cause of ill-feeling.

To accomplish these reforms Viscount Kaneko suggests the formation of a Japanese association at San Francisco to oversee the immigrants. If they persist in their ways they should be transported back to Japan. With true assimilation, the writer believed, the Japanese immigrants could reasonably look forward to the right of citizenship and the right to vote. "In short," he said, "they will be treated by the white men as their equals."

Dr. Kazutami Ukiti, the historian

of the privy council, in the October number of Chuo Koron or Central Review, Viscount Kaneko who knows the United States very well, and knows the American people, comes out flatly in favor of an economic alliance with the United States in respect to China. His reason is that a program of harmony and understanding would avoid needless competition and work to the best interests of Japan, the United States and China. He said: Japan might make temporary profits by dumping her commodities in China and driving away American goods from that market, but such an act would hardly improve the relations between Japan and America." As he saw the situation they had much better define their respective spheres of economic activity. As an instance, he suggested that Japan might monopolize the small hardware trade in China and leave to Americans the market for nails, iron-pipes, etc. In cotton spinning the Japanese might sell coarse threads and the Americans might sell fine threads. It is by such means that a conflict of interests could be avoided. And he added: "If such an effective economic alliance be concluded, agitators may do what they like, there will be no fear of a conflict between the two countries."

Turning to the question of immigration, Viscount Kaneko expressed the opinion that if the Japanese immigrants in the United States are misunderstood there it is largely their own fault. They are not inferior to European immigrants—they are thrifty and humane—but they should adopt American customs and manners, and strive to harmonize with their white neighbors instead of living a life apart. If their cost of living is increased, they could overcome that by selling their products at the same prices as the American farmers and traders. Instead of underselling them, thus they would root out another cause of ill-feeling.

To accomplish these reforms Viscount Kaneko suggests the formation of a Japanese association at San Francisco to oversee the immigrants. If they persist in their ways they should be transported back to Japan. With true assimilation, the writer believed, the Japanese immigrants could reasonably look forward to the right of citizenship and the right to vote. "In short," he said, "they will be treated by the white men as their equals."

Despite the fact that Meade is their official representative at the state house, the Boston labor men made no secret of their resentment of the action of the board, and particularly of the treatment accorded to Carmody. It is said that absolutely no reason was given him for his dismissal.

Carmody was appointed in December, 1913, by the original state board of labor and industries. That board took the view that the position of deputy commissioner of labor was one which should be filled by a man acceptable to laboring men, and accordingly it interviewed labor leaders in all parts of the state to ascertain their preference; Carmody was not a candidate, but was spoken of favorably by so many men that the members of the board included him among those being considered, and none of those inquired of opposed his selection.

When the original board was removed from office by Gov. Walsh and the new board appointed, Carmody alone of the higher officials under the board remained with the new regime. There had been no hint of dissatisfaction with his work, in fact laboring men who sought the assistance of the board considered that he was the ideal man for the position.

Speculation was rife yesterday as to the cause for the board's action, but no one could be reached who could, or would, explain it. Chairman Alfred W. Donovan could not be reached, and Edwin Mulready, commissioner of labor and executive officer of the board, simply said: "There was no reason for the change, except that the board had an opportunity to secure the services of Mr. Meade, and as the members felt that he was a find, they availed themselves of it."

and well known editor of the Tokyo Magazine, discusses American questions in a leading article on the effect of the Russo-Japanese alliance in the control or domination of the Pacific. He believes that by that alliance Japan has strengthened her position in the Asiatic continent.

Pointing out that during the war the Pacific ocean will be exclusively dominated by Japan, Great Britain and the United States, Dr. Ukiti says that the United States with its steady naval expansion, will become the greatest naval power in the Pacific in the future. He added: "If Japan, Great Britain and the United States co-operate peacefully in the Pacific, and derive the common benefit accruing therefrom, tranquility will reign in the Pacific ocean, but if a peaceful co-operation among these three powers should be found difficult, the Pacific may be turned into a hostile area and the world may witness another great war. At any rate the relations among these three powers in the Pacific are worthy of special study, and we have no doubt that the new Russo-Japanese agreement will have a very important effect thereon."

But Dr. Ukiti thinks it is either impossible or unnecessary for any of these three powers to monopolize the sea power in the Pacific. It will be sufficient for Japan, in his opinion, to maintain such a navy as will be competent to protect her from foreign aggression and insure the peace of the Far East.

Other writers participating in the forum include Prof. Shigeho Suyehiro, of the Imperial University of Kyoto; Shintaro Imagaki and Eijiro Hirano. Prof. Suyehiro is rather prominent from a trip he made to Mexico when he interviewed President Madero and was warmly welcomed. The other contributors are little known.

Writing in the Central Review, Dr. Suyehiro expresses gloomy forebodings for the future of the so-called Americans' problems. He fears that after the war America with her great wealth will prove a keen competitor for Japan in the markets of China, which may lead to political friction.

Also, he believes that the immigration question is a vital problem for the Japanese people whose future expansion depends upon the manner in which it is solved. He insists that America's treatment of Japanese injures Japan's prestige with the Chinese, who will never regard Japan as an equal of the European powers. "To solve our Chinese questions completely," he concluded, "we must solve the American question."

To give an idea of the viewpoint of the sensational writers, there are the words of Mr. Imagaki, who says: "The chief motive of the new American militarism is first, to defend the United States against a possible attack from Germany and Japan, and second, to contend for supremacy in the Orient. In short America has an uneasy conscience over the stamping of Japanese immigrants and is continuing up fearful bottlenecks of all sorts from her own troubled conscience. Witness the ridiculous Magdalena bay incident!"

And he concluded: "Let America's ambitious policy on the Pacific be a warning to us peoples of an oriental state. We, as well as the Chinese, should awake from our delusions, throw aside our petty quarrels and combine against the common enemy."

CARMODY FIRED AND LABOR MEN ARE SORE

Special to The Sun

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Dec. 4.—Cornelius J. Carmody of Worcester, who for the past three years has been deputy commissioner of labor in this state, has been removed from office by the state board of labor and industries, and John P. Meade of Brockton, chairman of the legislative committee of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor, has been appointed in his place.

Carmody was notified on Friday that he would sever his connection with the office the following day, although the board voted early in November to make the change. Contrary to its general custom of seeking publicity at all times, the board has carefully guarded the fact that the change was to be made, and it was only when a friend of Carmody's announced it yesterday at the meeting of the Boston Central Labor union that Boston labor men learned of it.

Despite the fact that Meade is their official representative at the state house, the Boston labor men made no secret of their resentment of the action of the board, and particularly of the treatment accorded to Carmody. It is said that absolutely no reason was given him for his dismissal.

INDIANS EASILY DEFEAT FORT STRONG

OLD CY YOUNG HOLDS HITLESS INNING RECORD

Tom Hughes of the Boston Nationals did some neat pitching when he worked in 16 consecutive innings without allowing a base hit to be made off his delivery, but it is hardly big enough to be a major league record, although many papers published the feat as being the best record in this line.

The powerful Indian football team played in real championship form at Spalding park Saturday afternoon and inflicted a 53 to 0 defeat on the Fort Strong eleven which came here recently as one of the strongest teams in greater Boston. The Indians' claim to the championship of the state and they certainly upheld this statement in Saturday's contest, scoring eight touchdowns and holding their opponents from their own goal line.

The Fort Strong team proved a disappointment. A year ago the eleven forced the Indians to accept a defeat by a narrow margin and as the local team has shown wonderful improvement this season a much closer score was anticipated. But the Indians out-played the Fort Strong team from the very start. The local boys' attack was disastrous so far as the visitors were concerned. The backs, everyone of them, tore through the Fort Strong team for long gains continually and Coach Palmer's line was a veritable stone wall when the opponents had the ball. Every Indian man who played in the game gave a good account of himself and proved competent to play on a championship team.

R. Donnellan, who played half back and left end, was one of the stars. He made one of the longest runs of the game for a touchdown after intercepting a forward pass attempted by the Fort Strong eleven. His all round work on the end was a feature. He made several spectacular catches of forward passes from McEntyre and Gleason which netted the Indians great gains.

McIntyre, Williams, Toye also played in brilliant fashion. The former was the leading getter for the team. He tore through the opposing line for good gains when called upon and his punting and goal kicking was far above the average. He kicked five goals, missing three from bad places. Williams hit the Fort Strong line for some of the best gains of the game and his defensive work also starred. Both McHugh and Toye showed rare judgment in directing the play of the team at all times and Gleason's plumbings through the centre were always good for long gains. The entire Indian line, from end to end, played like champions. E. Donnellan at right end played a particularly strong defensive game and like his brother proved fast in running down on punts.

For Fort Strong, Polley and Stites showed frequent dashes but their work was soon checked by the strong defense of the Indians. Their team work did not compare in any way with that of the Indians and but once or twice during the game did they make their down.

The lineup and summary:

Indians	Fort Strong
Pouliot, R. Donnellan, Jr.	Mr. Andrews, Seitz
Quinn, Jr.	Mr. Atkinson
Moran, Laurin, Ig.	Mr. Holloman, Fiske
Flynn, Rogers, C.	C. Paine
Morse, Jr.	H. Brooking
MacPherson, Jr.	R. Lawton
E. Donnellan, Jr.	R. Walsh
McHugh, Toye, qb	John. Reardon
McIntyre, Hb.	John. Smith
R. Donnellan, Toye, Williams, cb.	Bill. Tooley
Gleason, fb	John. Stites

Score: Indians 53, Fort Strong 6. Touchdowns: Gleason, Toye, 2; McIntyre, 2; R. Donnellan, Williams, Pouliot. Goals from touchdown: McIntyre 5; Reardon, Cawley, Colby; Ig. Fiske, Miller, Fort Strong; head line, 6; cold son. Time, 11-minute periods.

BURKE AND NEBES TO MEET IN THREE RACES

After considerable wrangling, note writing, challenging and counter-challenging, Harry Burke, the Bridgeport, Conn., roller skating artist and our own Albert Nebes, who claims the eastern championship, have signed articles to appear at the Rollaway rink on Hurst street in three races on Thursday, Friday and Saturday night respectively, to settle the claim of the eastern champion. Though the tide is sufficient incentive for the match, there is another "little thing" which demands the attention of the skaters and that is a side bet of $200 each making a purse of $600 which the winner will cap off in addition to the title. Another advantage that the winner will obtain is the long end of the purse hung up by Manager Moore of the rink. With all these things considered and the fact that the winner will be in position to demand a match with those, the world's choicest, it is needless to say that each man will put forth the best that is in him to win. While the man who wins two races will be declared the winner, in the event of one winning the first and second the third race must come off. Be it according to all reports, and newspaper clippings, an exceptionally fast man, and his own letters show that he is remarkable in his ability. This match should prove one of the best of the season and plans have been made to accommodate large crowds.

PAID ELECTION BET

Joseph A. Plante, a prominent resident of South Lowell, paid his political bet yesterday afternoon when he pushed a wheelbarrow in which was comfortably seated his brother-in-law, Alexandre Pelletier, from the home of the latter in Acton street, to the A.C.F. hall in Carmine street. The bet was witnessed by several friends of the two men who cheered the winner of the bet as he went by in his "barrel."

The members of the South Lowell Improvement association were in attendance at the hall and when the brothers-in-law made their appearance they gave them quite a reception. In the course of the afternoon a meeting of the Improvement association was held and a feature of the meeting was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, Arsene Brun; vice president, Ovide Pellerin; secretary, Armand Sasseigne; treasurer, Albert Martin; permanent committee, Enoch Duquette, chairman; E. Marchand, H. Fraticette, Thomas Theriault and Ernest Christmann; auditors, Amer Gagnon and Raymond de Gagnon; sergeant-at-arms, Emile Pellerin.

MACK SCORES FULTZ

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4. Connie Mack denied that he prohibited his players from joining the Baseball Player's Fraternity, as claimed by President Fultz.

"It is untrue," said Mack, "and Fultz should never have put such a charge in an report without first asking me whether it was correct."

I paid Fultz a good salary for playing ball for me for a number of years. I was more than an employee; I was his personal friend. Several times I told him extra money to sign players. Therefore, I want the sporting public to make their own opinion of a man who would make such an enormous statement about an old employee and friend."

I don't know whether all or any of my players are members of the fraternity because it is a matter that is the players' own business. But I want to say emphatically that never once, either by hint or declaration, have I ever asked one of my players not to join the organization."

JOHN KOWALSKI WAS OVERCOME BY SMOKE

A fire which did comparatively little damage to property broke out in a 3-story frame tenement block owned by Mary T. Whelley at 29 Fenwick street, corner of Sullivan's court, early last night, but the smoke was so dense that one person was overcome and it was necessary to raise ladders to assist a dozen in making their escape, it being impossible to go through the smoke-filled corridors.

Firemen and police officers were kept busy for five or ten minutes assisting in rescuing the occupants of the building. The block itself was confined to the cellar and did not do any material damage to the building, but the smoke made its way through practically every room in the six tenements in the block.

The blaze was discovered by John Morasky who lives in the vicinity and he sounded an alarm from box 114 Fenwick street, near Suffolk, at 6:30 o'clock.

The fire started in a cellar beneath a grocery store owned by George Shatt and located on the ground floor of the block.

In their efforts to get air, for the smoke for very dense the tenants crowded to the windows and when the firemen arrived were greatly excited. Ladders were set against the walls, and on these seven children and five grown persons were assisted down by the firemen and Patrolmen Dwyer and Bagley. One group, a woman and three children, was taken from the top story.

John Kowalski was overcome by smoke and was removed from the building none too soon to save his life. The ambulance was summoned and the man was taken to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment. The damage done the building by fire will be slight.

GRASS FIRE ALARMS

Shortly before midnight Saturday night was telephoned to the central fire station that there was a lively blaze in progress at Shedd park and Engine 4 was sent to the scene, but when the firemen arrived there was no sign of a fire.

Portions of the department were called out three times yesterday to extinguish grass fires. At 4 o'clock Hose 9 responded to a still alarm for a fire in Main street and a short time later the same company was called to extinguish a fire on the Marshall road at 3:14 when the element located in Pawtucketville was called to the East Meadow road, where there was a brush fire in progress.

INADEQUATE SUPPLY OF COAL MAY CLOSE PLANTS

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Proprietors of laundrys in Paris and the neighboring districts have decided to close their establishments on Dec. 20, unless the government guarantees them an adequate supply of coal.

DID NOT BREAK RECORD

Billy Carpenter, world's champion boxer and trick roller skater who completed a most successful three days' engagement at the Rollaway rink Saturday night, failed in an attempt to break his record, which is the world's record of spinning seven minutes. He made a desperate effort to do so, spinning just 6 minutes, 18.4 seconds. His work was greatly appreciated by the large crowd, despite the fact that he did not set up a new mark.

There is not the profit in baseball that many persons imagine. For a good business man, it isn't the safest kind of investment. I have found that one from personal experience. And baseball will remain a precarious business until the salaries are brought down to a level the business can afford. Under the present system the players are getting all the profits.

"Now do not misunderstand me. I do not mind paying ball players high salaries, and I am discussing this question from a business man's standpoint. For instance, we pay Frank Baker lots of money, but he is worth every penny he gets. I would not pay him less. His ability to win games and his power as a drawing card make him a valuable asset. He is worth the money as a business proposition. But there are a great many players who have not earned anything like the amount of money they received. I do not blame them, as they get as high salaries as possible. But I repeat, the business cannot afford it."

CRIMES IN THE "MOVIES"

The state of Pennsylvania is taking the lead in barring from the moving picture shows all illustrations of robberies and crimes of various kinds that might suggest to the innocent the commission of such crimes and even show how every detail is carried out.

The movies furnish the most realistic representation of human action known apart from the actual events portrayed. The robbery of a bank is shown in pictures quite as clearly as if it were a reality. So is the looting of a store and the striking down of the custodians with concealed weapons.

Since the moving pictures came to be so popular almost every conceivable crime has been either illustrated or suggested to old and young that the youth of today is much better versed in the doings of criminals than were intelligent adults of a generation ago.

It is true that in most cases the show indicates that the criminal eventually comes to grief, but in far too many instances, outlaws are exploited as heroes and given a prominence and an exalt for their cleverness that is liable to excite even the envy of some individuals whose mental balance and self control are notably deficient.

The moving picture film presents scenes so graphically as to form a lasting impression upon the youthful mind and when the seeds of scandal are thus scattered upon susceptible soil, the results cannot fail to be of the very worst kind.

Already the evil of the movies when not properly censored stands as a menace to every community in which they are presented, a menace particularly to the young and one the evil results of which are difficult to estimate. Hence it is gratifying to find that the state of Pennsylvania takes a decided stand against the portrayal of crimes upon the canvas. Let us hope that for the protection of children and adults as well against moral poison other states will follow the example.

BONAR LAW FOR PREMIER

Congress opened today and prepared to take up the various legislative matters left pending when it adjourned late in the summer.

Foremost of all will come the railroad question which has forced itself to the front as a result of the difficulties encountered by the roads in meeting the transportation needs of the country. Primarily, the scarcity of cars was set down as the cause, but later it came to light that the roads are subservient to too many bosses. Large systems doing an interstate business are fettered by the regulations of forty-eight states and also by the control of the interstate commerce commission.

The companies are chafing over petty interference with their operations and allege that this is one of the principal reasons why they have not been able to keep pace with the growth of the great volume of business throughout the country.

The remedy demanded is federal incorporation and control and relief from state supervision.

In reference to the need of such a change there is practically no difference of opinion. It is acknowledged to be the sole cure for many of the worst transportation problems of the day. There is little doubt as to what congress will do about it.

Another big question which congress will take up is the legislation necessary to supplant the Adamson law.

President Wilson was criticized for his course in favoring the Adamson law as the only possible mode of averting a great strike. It will now be seen that he adopted that method merely as a preliminary to a law which will make railroad strikes illegal until after a thorough investigation and that will also afford ample protection to the public against all such dangers in the future. What plan the president will recommend for that purpose is not yet known; but in line with his original intention, it will doubtless be practical, effective, and such as will meet all the exigencies of the situation.

In addition to these measures there will doubtless be some discussion of the necessities of an embargo on the export of certain foodstuffs and possibly some action may be taken to deal with the cold storage and other agencies that hoard the food supply to await higher prices even when prices have already reached unprecedented figures. At least the short session of congress may be looked forward to with full confidence that it will solve some of the biggest problems that confronted any congress since Civil war days.

AN ALLEGED MENACE

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 4.—The danger to American economic strength through the tendency of union labor to place itself above law and order is one big cloud on our horizon when we look to the days to follow this world conflict, said former Senator Taft in an address at the chamber of commerce here today. Despite that alleged danger existed when Mr. Taft was president and even when Colonel Roosevelt was president, but neither did anything to correct it.

President Wilson in the coming session of congress will recommend that proper legal restrictions be placed upon all combinations whether of capital or labor, so that the interests of the nation and all its people will be safe.

The republicans devoted all their energies to opposing the trusts and the money power, but neither was considered a menace to the country by such men as Taft and Roosevelt. These republican elements will also be placed under proper restraint by democratic legislation.

Newspapers With Odd Titles

Every man is his hobby. In column two is a man whose chief joy is in a collection of newspaper titles. He has made a specialty of clipping queer headings, and the assortment is oddly interesting.

Of course, there are plenty of "Couriers," "Journals" and "Heralds" scattered over the country, and there are "Headlights," "Flashlights," "Bees," "Engines," "Owls," "Mirrors" and "Newsletters," but when it comes to "Derricks," "Meddlers," "Telescopes," "Flies" and "Simplicities," the class is more limited. In Hot Springs there is nothing. "The Arkansas Thomas" and other titles just as unusual as "The Shady Hamper," "The Impresario," "The Silver Worker," and the like.

Frequently it is impossible to tell from the title of a newspaper the state in which it is published. For instance "The Chieftain" is in Oklahoma; "The Ruster" and "The Lariat" are in Texas; "Big Hole Breeze" in Montana, and "The Roundup" in Wyoming—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

Back to the State

When our fathers and grandfathers were "school size" there was no such thing as a "tablet" on which to work, examples and write spelling lessons. The smooth, gray slate was the medium of head-to-head communication between the pupil and the presiding deity of knowledge.

The older generation can shut its eyes and see it still—the slate with its red felt or bare rim, the hole in the frame from which dangled two strings holding respectively a bit of wet sponge and a sharpened slate pencil. It was so easy to correct mistakes with the damp sponge—or sorrowful to say—the tip of a finger wet in the mouth. And when everything was finished, the whole problem was wiped off, and the proverbial "clean slate" was ready for a new start.

The sanitarians waged war on the slate because of the wet finger process of cleaning, and the school book people fought it because they wanted to sell the tablets, and the teachers and parents were on the side of the sanitarians.

But the scarcity of white paper pulp and the consequent high price of tablet paper may result in a return of the slate to the schoolroom, from which it has so long been an exile. For while the "kids" will find it rather awkward to accept this old-new school tool, but it will look quite natural to their parents.

The next thing after the return of

Sister's Problem

She's got things for the babies. And she's bought a gift for me. She's got a toy for all the kids. To grace the Christmas tree. She has presents for her uncles. And her aunts, but doesn't know A single, solitary thing. To give unto her beau.

She's bought for dear old mother. And she's bought a gift for dad. And she's bought for sister Nellie. But I think she's going mad. For, in spite of all her thinking, Even now she doesn't know What to give on Christmas morning To the man who is her beau.

"It's hard to buy," she murmurs. "For a man," and then she sighs: "Hard to make three dollars purchase Anything that seems a prize." And her brow with care is wrinkled. And her heart is full of woe. For the shopping days grow fewer, And there's nothing for her beau.

Life is ever full of problems. Problems grave that sore perplex; Old and young face situations.

NEWS FROM CITY HALL AND DEPARTMENTS

The civil service examinations which have been advertised for some time at city hall will begin tomorrow and will continue until Thursday, being held each day from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

On Tuesday the examination for clerks, messengers and water inspectors, classes 3 and 11, will be held, and on Wednesday the examination for policemen and firemen will be held. The number to take the examinations is the smallest for a number of years in this city. The largest class for any one day will not exceed 29.

Pension Money

The city has just received from the federal government $10,000 which will be distributed in pensions to 265 veterans of the Civil war and 269 veterans' widows.

Gen. Butler's Picture

This morning Will Rounds, the well known photographer was taking a photograph of the fine picture of General Benjamin F. Butler which hangs in the reception room. This picture was a gift of General Butler's family and was painted by Walter Gilman Page in 1904. Mr. Rounds has been commissioned by Mr. Albert W. David of the United States Cartridge company to make a life-sized copy of the painting which is to hang in the office of the manufacturing plant.

The men of the park department have been trimming the trees on Fort Hill for the past few days and they will continue the work on the South common. All is in readiness at Shedd park for the flooding, but the department waits for the ground to freeze before turning on the water. This will be done at night and it usually takes two or three nights to flood the skating area.

Superintendent Kerman and Harvey E. Greene attended the sessions of the American Park Institute in Newton last Thursday. Dinner was prepared by the pupils of the Technical school and served by them in the school building.

Meetings

There will be a regular meeting of the municipal council tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and there will be a meeting of the cemetery commission in the afternoon at 4:30.

BOARD OF HEALTH CONDEMNS SEWERS

At a meeting of the board of health at city hall this morning, the body went on record as favoring the extension of the Chestnut street sewer further into the so-called "mill pond" as a safeguard to the public health and called attention to unfavorable and unhealthy conditions found at the entrance of the Wall street sewer. These matters were dealt with partly on the recommendation of the waterways committee.

The board of health recently visited the banks of the Concord river and paid special attention to the outlet of the Chestnut street and Walk street sewers. They stated at this morning's meeting that at the outlet at Wall street they found a large accumulation of debris, tins, old iron and other refuse that prevented the ready flow of sewage into the river. They also stated that at low water there is considerable stench from sewage which does not escape.

At the Chestnut street outlet, the board said, was found a condition which is a menace to the public health, the sewage flowing over dry land before reaching the river. When the water is low there is a strong stench at this point. In the letter to the board of health relative to this the waterways committee had said "there being but little prospect of our

CUPID PUTS ONE OVER ON UNCLE SAM

A wedding in which a Lowell man figured as the bridegroom was performed by Rev. Panos Gineres of this city at the immigration office in Boston Sunday and it is probable that the matter will be brought to the attention of the United States district attorney.

The couple united in the bonds of matrimony by the Lowell clergymen were Stellinos Cambisicles of this city and Miss Thelope Pharares of Greece, who has been in this country for the past ten months. Both claim they are first cousins and there is where the hitch comes for according to the laws of Greece first cousins cannot marry.

About five months ago Immigration Officer Clark of Boston came to Lowell and requested the local police to help him locate a young woman known as Thelope Pharares, who was wanted as a witness in the case of one Stellinos Cambisicles, who had been arrested in Salem on charge of bringing to the United States a young woman for immoral purposes.

Miss Pharares was located in a home in Dracut, where she was being kept in hiding and the same day was taken to Boston by Immigration Officer Clark.

The case against Cambisicles was not pressed and the young man was released, but the young woman was held by the immigration authorities for deportation to Greece for it was claimed that she had been brought to this country on false pretenses. It seems that Cambisicles went to Greece prior to his arrest in Salem and attempted to marry Miss Pharares, but was unable on account of the laws of Greece. The couple came to this country as brother and sister and came to Lowell. A brother of the young woman brought a complaint against Cambisicles and the arrest of the two followed. Cambisicles was later released, but the young woman was detained by the immigration officers.

Yesterday Cambisicles visited his sweetheart and while he was at the immigration office with a marriage license in his pocket, Rev. Panos Gineres of this city, who had been more or less interested in the pair, walked into the office and in the presence of two witnesses, also from Lowell, made Cambisicles and Miss Pharares man and wife. But the immigration officers refused to release the young bride, who is being detained for deportation, while the groom of one day returned to Lowell alone.

Immigration Commissioner H. J. Skillington, after hearing of the marriage ceremony, said that he was doubtful of the legality of the wedding ceremony performed under such peculiar circumstances.

"It is possible," he said, "that the matrimonial requirements, such as obtaining and producing the marriage license, have been complied with, but there are many other elements which must be given careful consideration." When told that the certificate given to the bride had been signed by the two witnesses, he said: "It is a puzzle to me how this man was able to obtain the license at all. He is not an American citizen, so far as I am aware, and if he thinks that by the marriage, he will be able to keep the girl in this country, a surprise may await him."

KNOWS CAMBISICLES WELL

Rev. Mr. Gineres, when seen later, said in his capacity as a Greek missionary and as a social worker among his fellow-countrymen he had taken a personal interest in the couple for the past four years.

"Four years ago Cambisicles came to Lowell from Greece," he said. "I became acquainted with him. Seven or eight months after he returned to that country and came to America again a little later. Five months ago he went to Greece again and returned with Miss Pharares. They both came to Lowell in May.

"A month ago immigration officers came to Lowell and took the couple to Boston. I heard that the man had been arrested on the charge of bringing a girl into this country for immoral purposes. I also learned that the case did not come up for trial. Meanwhile the girl has been held at the immigration station.

"I wrote to the immigration officials both in Boston and Washington in an effort to have the girl released, or to have something done in the matter. I got no response from either source. The man obtained a marriage license in Lowell last week and I know from his letters that he has been determined to marry the girl for a long time. I do not know whether they will release the girl as a result of the marriage or not."

U. S. MARINES IN CLASH AT SANTO DOMINGO

Beginning tomorrow the white pole in Prescott street will be eliminated and cars will not stop for passengers from the time they leave Merrimack square until they reach Central street.

This is but an experiment and if the public does not raise too much objection and the scheme proves to relieve congestion in the street it will be continued, but if otherwise the stopping place will be reinstated.

There has been more or less talk pro and con relative to the best means of relieving congestion in Prescott street and one of the suggestions was that the white pole near the gateway in the rear of The Sun building be removed.

This afternoon Sup't. Thomas Lees, of the State Street Railway Co., sent a letter to Mayor O'Donnell, stating that as per the latter's suggestion, the white pole in Prescott street would be painted out tomorrow and cars would not stop in the street to take on or leave off passengers. This is but an experiment and in the event of its proving to be a success the stopping place will be eliminated, but otherwise it will be restored after a reasonable length of time.

FIREMEN FIGHT FLAMES IN WATSON AVENUE

An alarm from box 31 at 7:41 o'clock this morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a lively blaze in the three story frame tenement building at 15 Watson avenue, owned by Jane Noble. The fire started in a pile of rubbish in the cellar and its timely discovery was the only thing that prevented the structure from being gutted. The fire itself was confined to the cellar but the building as well as adjoining buildings were filled with smoke.

It was stated that the fire was caused by some boys but the tenants who use the cellar where the fire started said that they were downstairs about ten minutes before the blaze was discovered and everything appeared to be all right. In order to ascertain if the fire had made its way through the partitions to the upper stories it was necessary to rip off a number of clapboards.

When the department arrived on the scene there was a lively blaze in the cellar and it was not extinguished until two lines of hose had been laid and two chemical tanks had been emptied.

IN PROTESTANT CHURCHES UNION SERVICES

At the union service in the High Street church last evening, Rev. Herbert A. Barker, pastor of the Eliot church, preached on "The Lord of Candlesticks." There was singing by the quartet of the First Unitarian and High Street churches.

"Let us not forget," said the speaker, "that when disaster seems ripe before us and the world is going dead wrong, there is one like unto the Son of Man clothed with majesty and might, and that he is conqueror over all."

"We scheme, plan, tell, analyze; are disengaged and downcast, conscious that we are facing tremendous problems, conscious of the great conflict raging, conscious, too often, of our own weakness and insufficiency, but in the midst of the churches stands the conqueror, Christ. He is going to help us in the work, and the church that stands in the light of Christ is to be helped in its glorious work.

WHAT UNITARIANS BELIEVE

At the First Unitarian church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Alfred Rodman Hussey, preached on "What Unitarians Believe," and said:

"Unitarians believe in one God who is the God and Father of us all—wise all-powerful all-good. God of the living and the dead, creator and preserver of all mankind; who slumbers not nor sleeps; with whom is no variableness nor shadow of turning; who is no respecter of persons; who giveth to all men equally, causing the sun to rise on the evil and the good, the rain to fall on the just and unjust. It is He who hath made us and not we ourselves. Though he moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform, from the things we see we trust that somehow good shall be the final goal of ill. We cannot lose him, though we die; 'for death is but the triumph of life over one of its specified forms.'

A WORD ABOUT MUTTS

The First Baptist church was crowded Sunday evening to hear the pastor, Rev. A. C. McWhinney, who had for his subject, "Billy Sunday Right When He Says That Unitarians Are Mutts and God Hates a Mutt."

On the meaning of the term "mutt" he said he presumed that Mr. Sunday had in mind a man who has all the traits before him, but who seems incapable of acting thereon.

After registering his protest against any propaganda of calling names, the preacher said:

"I cannot see that Mr. Sunday's position is strengthened by his practice in this regard. Certainly, I am not prepared to say that denominational numbering among its adherents such men as Longfellow, William Cullen Bryant, James Russell Lowell, Emerson, Whittier, five presidents of the United States, and six supreme court justices in body of mutts."

FIRST UNIVERSALIST

Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D.D., entering upon the 22nd year of his pastorate at the First Universalist church yesterday, preached a sermon in the morning which was largely in the nature of retrospect. He brought before his congregation a story of the growth of Universalism and of its great meaning, of his coming to this city and of the labor of love it has been for him to preach more than a score of years from the pulpit of the church. It was a story of pleasant memories, and of hope for the future. There was special music by the quartet of the church with Mrs. Symonds as soloist.

SUCCESSFUL CANVASS

Great success attended the second "every member" canvass by members of the First Trinitarian church yesterday afternoon. Fifty canvassers, some in pairs and some assisted by automobiles, visited parishioners, and several hundred calls were made. The reports of the canvassers are given out at the evening service were most encouraging, with manifestations of much interest, enthusiasm and cordiality of spirit. Luncheon was served for the returning canvassers before the evening service, under the auspices of Mrs. Nelson Hiltner, H. C. Moore, and Miss Margaret Robertson. Trustees of the church had the campaign in charge, especially the subcommittee composed of Deacon G. T. Upton, Mrs. Charles Abare and Miss Fannie Murphy. A vote of thanks was extended to the committee in charge of the campaign and to the women in charge of serving the luncheon.

are constantly under the supervision of Major Plexico. Practically all of the boys will return to school as soon as this tour is over. At the present time they are on a leave of absence for one year. Manager Pickett of the B. F. Keith theatre was present at city hall and stated that the band is not paid in proportion to the work of the individuals, but that the members pay their own way, the money received going part way in the payment of expenses.

When the boys left into the reception room, they judged themselves in front of the mayor's office. His Honor came out immediately and had a brief but appropriate speech welcomed them to Lowell. He then gave them permission to play in the building and they gave a fine medley of national airs, beginning with "Hail Columbia" and ending with the "Star Spangled Banner."

Superintendent Moller congratulated the boys on the educational opportunity they are enjoying and reiterated the statement of the mayor as to their bright appearance. He invited them to visit the schools of the city, and Major Plexico said that they are going to visit the Textile school, the State Normal school and several of the large manufacturing plants of the city. When the boys got ready to march out they were applauded heartily, and they played on their return trip in a way that indicated their satisfaction with Lowell's official welcome. The California Boys' band will be seen and heard all week at the B. F. Keith's theatre, where, besides instrumental selections, they will give vocal numbers and exhibitions of drills, acrobatics and folk dancing.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The United States civil service commission announces competitive examinations as follows:

Dec. 4—Duty manufacturing specialist, grade, salary, $1800 to $2700 per annum.

Open dates—Electrical draftsman, grade salary, $322 to $6 per diem; membership draftsman, grade salary, $325 to $5 per diem; junior structural steel draftsman, grade salary, $322 to $1 per diem. Cut off time notice and on account of the urgent needs of the service, applications for these latter examinations will be received at any time, and the papers will be rated immediately upon their receipt, in order that appointments may be made with the least possible delay. Candidates will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated on the subjects, which will have the relative weight indicated.

Jan. 3—Translator, German, French, Spanish and Italian, grade salary, $120 to $140 per annum; apprentice pilot, transfer and engineer, grade salary, $120 per annum; inspector of chain, grade salary, $1 per annum; junior petroleum technologist, grade salary, $120 to $100 per annum; senior petroleum technologist, grade salary, $120 to $100 per annum; timber cruiser, grade salary, $120 per annum.

BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

Over 200 tickets for the "American First" banquet of the Lowell board of trade, which will be held at the Kashiwa on the evening of Dec. 7, have been called for by members of the organization and about 300 more tickets are still on hand at the office of the board. The time for the issuing of tickets will expire tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock and under no consideration will tickets be issued after that time.

It was announced this meeting that, in addition to the program of noted speakers, the famous Boston male quartet has been retained for the occasion, and these singers will delight their audience with popular and patriotic selections. The dinner will open at 6:30 o'clock sharp, while from 8 to 9:30 an informal reception will be held.

ACTIVITY IN RAILS AT THE OPENING

MEXICANS ALSO IMPROVED IN RESPONSE TO LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The week opened with the resumption of activity in rails, mainly those of the minor grade, like Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Wabash and Southern railway, gains to over 100 points. Railroads also improved substantially in response to latest developments across the border. Utilities were again in demand with a new record for Columbia Gas and a 2 percent gain dues the democratic majority in the senate from 16 to 14, the senate now being composed of 53 democrats and 41 republicans. In the new senate the majority will be reduced to 12.

There will be three new members also to take seats in the house. Thos. W. Harrison, democrat, succeeding James Bay, of Virginia; Harry G. Woodward, republican, of West Virginia, who succeeded Republican Moss, deceased, and Henry S. Benedict, progressive of California, elected for the short term in place of Republican Stephens, who resigned to become lieutenant governor of his state.

TO RUSH RR. LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—When congress reconvened today President Wilson had the assurances of Speaker Clark and Representative Kitchin majority leader, that they would try to hasten enactment of railroad legislation desired by the administration. Both expressed the opinion in a conference with the president last night that measures to supplement the Adamson law could be passed in the short session, but they asked the president's influence to eliminate the usual two weeks' Christmas holiday recess. Similar promises of co-operation on the railroad front will be sought by the president this week from some leaders.

The new senators who will take their seats today are James E. Watson, republican, of Indiana, elected in place of Thomas Taggart, democrat, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Shively; Bart M. Fernand, democrat, of New York, who succeeds Senator Burleigh, deceased, and William F. Kirby, democrat of Arkansas, succeeding the late Senator Clarke. The election of Watson re-

Thug Besieged In House After Slaying a Woman

Shot Two Officers; Held 30 Policemen at Bay for Three Hours

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—A gunman, who had just killed one woman, wounded another, and shot two policemen, held 30 policemen at bay three hours yesterday morning before he shot and killed himself with his last cartridge. Barricaded in house at 1543 Northwood street, the desperado raked the narrow thoroughfare with bullets from two big revolvers. He repulsed one attack after another. The house in which he took refuge was literally riddled with bullets from the policemen's revolvers.

The pitched battle centred about the three-story brick house at 1743 Northwood street, a small thoroughfare west of Twenty-second street.

Facing death under the fire of two heavy .40 calibre army revolvers in the hands of the gunman, the police closed in on him relentlessly and systematically.

Led by Lieutenant Little, they fought him from the roofs of houses on both sides of the street, from the spare shelter of doorways, from the back of the house, forcing him from the second floor to the third, and thwarted by his last barricade, prepared to drive him out with sulphur from the rear and ammonia from the front when the end came.

The fight started just before 3 o'clock. Almost from the beginning until late last night a crowd, never less than 1000, multiplied several times that number at the height of the battle, surged around the neighborhood. The police were compelled to rope off the streets during the battle to prevent the spectators from getting within bullet range.

The dead are: Ollie Emerson, 30 years old, and Charles Wescott, the gunman, 35 years old. His home was in the neighborhood of Tenth and Lombard streets.

C. M. A. C. MEETING

Largest Class in History of Organization Initiated Yesterday—Membership Now Totals 1050

A special meeting of the C.M.A.C. was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of initiating a large class of new members. The meeting was presided over by President Louis St. Jean and 129 new members, the largest class in the history of the organization, were received into the society. At the close of the initiation ceremony remarks were made by several members of the association.

In the course of the meeting it was announced that the membership now numbers 1050 and that before the present recruiting contest is over it is hoped it will pass the 1100 mark. The nomination of officers for the C.M.A.C. will be held tomorrow evening. On Thursday evening the final match in the contest between the society and Club Citoyens-Amercians will be held and Friday evening the first basketball game of the season will be played with the C.Y.M.L. second quintet.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

Opera House Scene of Impressive Ceremony by Lowell Lodge

Eloquent Tribute to Brothers Who Have Crossed Great Divide

Eulogy by Cong. John Jacob Rogers—Fine Order of Exercises

CONGRESSMAN JOHN J. ROGERS

Members of Lowell Lodge, No. 87, B.P.O.E., as they are wont to do annually, gathered in the Lowell Opera House yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to attend the memorial service conducted to pay tribute to departed members. This custom is followed by every lodge of Elks in the country, one Sunday being set aside to honor the memory of fallen Elks who have passed to the great beyond.

The exercises held under the auspices of the Lowell Lodge were well attended not only by Elks but by a large number of friends. The stage of the theatre was appropriately decorated. A sombre background with 12 candles burning in front indicated the character of the service. Each candle represented a departed brother and was extinguished at the call of the roll. American flags covered a table upon which rested the head of an Elk.

The Elks orchestra, Arthur J. Martel, director, played Chopin's funeral march as the members of the order entered the auditorium headed by Exalted Ruler William Scott and other officers, who conducted the opening ceremonies. A quartet composed of James E. Donnelly, Harry Hopkins, Mrs. Bertha Jordan and Mrs. F. L. Roberts sang "Some Blessed Day" beautifully. The roll was called by Secretary Christopher J. Hagan. A likeness of each departed member was thrown on the screen as the name was called. The candles were extinguished by James E. Donnelly. The mournful tolls were sounded in the distance. Following the impressive officers' ceremony, prayer was said by Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D.D., pastor of the First Universalist church. Miss Lillian L. Chaloux, soprano, rendered "The Rosary," and Harry Hopkins and Mrs. Bertha Jordan sang "Love Divine." Theology of the day was given by Congressman John Jacob Rogers, after which Mrs. F. L. Roberts sang "The Bright Beyond."

Congressman Rogers' eulogy was, in part, as follows:

Brother Elks and Friends: We are here today to pay tribute to the members of this lodge, who during the past year have fallen out of our ranks, each to answer "Adsum" as his name was called upon the rolls of the hereafter. There is no sweeter or finer custom in all fraternal life than this of ours to dedicate one Sunday in the year to memory, when all over the land Elks pause in their day's occupations and pay tribute to their departed brothers. The past two years have been greatly with scenes of carnage and deeds of

How much more Christian and I believe, more in accord with human experience than the warped maxim of Shakespeare:

"The evil that men do lives after them; The good is oft interred with their bones."

Animals forget their dead without delay, human beings remember and cherish the memory. Often at first the sense of loss is deep and bitter, but time at length lays open us a soft hand and makes us calm. This, too, is a wise dispensation, for if grief were to continue as sharp as at the moment it comes to us, the world for us, and for all men, would be a place of eternal

Yet I think that few of you upon reflection would exchange the mystery and the grandeur and the elusiveness of your present faith for any more definite conception. We cannot phrase the after-life in terms of the multiplication table or the rule of three.

We can simply remember:

"Life is real, life is earnest;
And the grave is not gone;
Dust thou art, to dust return,
Was not spoken of the son."

The book of our friend's life bore no word "Finis" when the introduction had been written.

Some one has said that every man's life is made up of inheritance plus environment. When a man dies his inheritance and his environment during life become of little moment. Whatever their stations in life, all are of equal rank today and in this service. "Judge not that ye be not judged." Thomas Carlyle is said to have remarked as he passed in the streets a miserable, drunken wretch. "There, but for the grace of God, goes Thomas Carlyle."

That is the spirit of true brotherhood, and I hope, of this fraternity to judge a man not by his absolute accomplishment, but by his use of the talents which God gave him.

Remember that he that humbleth himself is oftentimes exalted.

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark, unbottomed caves of ocean bear,
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth ever gave,
Awake alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

Remember that the commander of the forces of the king said, on the eve of the storming of Quebec: "I would rather be the author of those lines than take Quebec tomorrow."

Judge not a man by his station or by his fortune. Try to judge him by what he will take with him from this world into the next. All material things vanish as life becomes extinct. All are alike in the presence of the Great Judge.

To say truth, I think that our order in unusual degree separates the trap-pings from the man in its appraisement. I believe it approaches a true

RUSSIA TO GET CONSTANTINOPLE

EXALTED RULER WILLIAM SCOTT

Reason Why Russians are Shedding Blood In Great War

Agreement In 1915 After Turkey Joined Teutonic Powers

PETROGRAD, via London, Dec. 4.—The semi-official news agency says that in the drama Saturday Premier Trepoff read a proclamation announcing officially that an agreement concluded by Russia, France and Great Britain in 1915 and later approved by Italy, "established in definite manner the right of Russia to the Straits and Constantinople."

Allies' Agreement

Premier Trepoff's announcement is quoted by a news agency as follows:

"For more than a thousand years Russia has been reaching southward through a free outlet on the open sea. This age-long dream, cherished in the hearts of the Russian people, is now ready for realization.

The Saddest Month

I am glad that the founders of this custom chose for its observance a day in December—the saddest month in the year, when nature is asleep, and its awakening seems so far away—when nights are long and days are short—when all seems solemn, reflective and even inert. In a word, when the world seems attuned to the spirit of the dead and of death. And yet December is, too, the month of Christ cheer, when holiday joy and gladness reign, when old Scrooge yields to the burst of the Christmas carol; when every heart looks eagerly forward to the promise of the New Year.

So our day should mingle in itself the dead past and the bright beauty to come; the somberness of natural things with the glory of things spiritual.

We are commemorating the passing of men of common clay like ourselves; they do not and should not become tainted by the fact of death. They had our virtues, our vices, our strength, our weakness, even though, as I have said, we prefer and should prefer to remember the one and soften the other.

Each one
"Struts and frets his hour on the stage
And then is heard no more."

And as the bible expresses it:

"As for man his days are as grass;
As a flower of the field so he flourishes."
"For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more."

Why, then, do we assemble in memory of these men whose places know them no more? Why is this service not an idle, empty, vain thought?

Because each of those men had a soul—a divine spark which we believe still lives. This is a matter of faith, not of proof, say the doubters. Yes, but I cannot believe that any one of you would take even the trouble involved in coming here this afternoon did you not believe in a future existence. You cannot describe it, you cannot even speculate about its nature, and yet you believe. You believe that your dear ones remain with you, that they are spirit, that they are immortal, that they are spirit over life, that they are spirit over death.

To those among you who are recently bereaved, we can only offer our sympathy. We cannot make you forget; we would not if we could.

You will continue to say, as the days roll by:

"And the stately spires go on;
To the haven under the hill;
But O, for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still."

We can only offer the comfort of the joys of a future life:

"Let not your heart be troubled. In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. For I go to prepare a place for you."

We can only repeat the inspired words of the great laureate of England:

"Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea."

But such a tide as moving seems
A steen;

Too full for sound and foam,

When that which drew from out the boundless deep

Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of fare-well,
When I embark;

For tho' from out our bourn of Time
And Place.

The Hood may bear me far,

I hope to see my Pilot face to face

When I have crost the bar.

The benediction service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Fisher.

Young Men's Hebrew Association Heard Rabbi Israel of Boston—Program of Entertainment

An interesting meeting of the Young Men's Hebrew association was held last night at the rooms of the association in Central street. A. S. Goldman presiding. The speaker of the evening was Rabbi Israel of Boston. A pleasing entertainment program was carried out by the following persons taking part: Miss Tibbie Rosenfeld, Percy Leightman, Miss Rose Blank, Miss Mae Levine, Miss Bessie Neyman, George Myers, Miss Rose Knopf, Julius Neyman, Anthony Schwartz, Miss Lillian Prantl. The entertainment was concluded with the singing of the Jewish anthem, Habikka. Refreshments were served under the direction of Sigmund Rostler, chairman of the social committee.

CRUSHING ANSWER TO GERMANY

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The statement of Premier Trepoff before the drama Sunday is regarded here as the most outspoken and powerful utterance pronounced in Petrograd since the outbreak of the war and a complete and crushing answer to German peace intrigues.

"In his last speech," says the Marin-Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg was forced not to say anything against Russia. In a semi-official statement he flattered her transparently and hinted that, contrary to all appearance, there might be an honorable understanding in the east. Premier Trepoff's speech effectively disposes of the chancellor's illusions."
